New Battles Rage as 10,000 More Join Greek Rebellion

ELAS GENERAL AIDS LEFTISTS IN CIVIL WAR

Guerrillas Shell British in Athens.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, Dec. 10.—The Civil war in Athens, which in the last week has converted the streets and parks of this ancient capital into a bloody battleground, gained fierce new intensity today. Principal developments were:

1. British army authorities stated 10,000 left wing ELAS guerrillas who have been fighting in Athens against the Greek government forces and the British had been reenforced during the last 24 hours by approximately 10,000 fresh ELAS troops, commanded by Gen. Stephanos Serafis. The ELAS occupies four-fifths of the city and most of the high ground surrounding it.

[The ELAS now hold most of the port of Piraeus and the bulk of the police stations in Athens, the London radio said last night, quoting a dispatch from its Athens correspondent.]

2. The ELAS forces at noon today directed 75 millimeter fire at the vicinity of British army headquarters, located in the fifth of the city cleared by the British. Four shells landed in the street beside the headquarters building, and a Greek woman passerby's leg was torn off. [The headquarters is only 150 yards from the Grande Bretagne hotel, where correspondents and British officers are quartered.]

Shelling Is Resumed.

At 4 p. m. today ELAS forces again shelled British-held central Athens, firing into Omonola square, not more than a half-mile east of British headquarters.

Earlier this afternoon royal air force Spitfires divebombed the outskirts of eastern Athens, where apparently a large ELAS force was gathering. After the bombing R. A. F. Wellingtons dropped leaflets into the area.

British reenforcements are on the way to clear the heavily armed guerrillas from the city. It was stated Indian troops might be employed against the Greek leftists.

Entrance of Serafis and his forces into the war on the side of the ELAS [EAM liberation front guerrillas] fighting in Athens, came with lightning speed. Yesterday the information was that the Athens guerrillas were not true ELAS, but leftist fanatics who broke away and started the revolution. Serafis was believed to be standing by, desiring no part of the struggle.

Admit Serafis in Action.

Today it is admitted his troops have joined action against the Greek nationalists and the British. Serafis is leader of all ELAS forces in Greece, variously estimated between 42,000 and 70,000 men. Ironically, part of their equipment is British, dropped to them to fight the Germans.

Twenty thousand now are battling in and around Athens, and British lorry drivers just returned from Salonika reported that large forces moving toward the capital were little more than 100 miles to the north.

A spokesman said the British would go into action in other parts of the country to maintain peace.

France, Russia Sign Alliance of Mutual Aid

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 10.—A new setting for post-war developments in Europe took shape with the announcement in Paris of the signature in Moscow today of a treaty of alliance and mutual assistance between soviet Russia and Gen. de Gaulle's provisional government of France.

Gen. de Gaulle.

The treaty concluded between the French and soviets, it is indicated in Paris tonight, follows the lines of the Anglo-Russian pact signed in July, 1941, between the governments of Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin just after the German attack on Russia.

A joint bulletin published in Paris this evening states the treaty's signature coincided with the departure from Moscow of Gen. de Gaulle and his foreign secretary, Georges Bidault, after a week's visit to the Kremlin.

De Gaulle Honored.

De Gaulle has been accorded signal honors by the soviets, and French dispatches from Moscow state he was seen off from the Russian capital with high ceremonies in the presence of Foreign Commissar Molotov, army chiefs, and diplomatic corps members.

French political circles were speculating on the advantages and significance the treaty made with the Reds by De Gaulle will have for France. Those politicians here who resented the delays in recognition of De Gaulle's provisional government, and other incidents in the early weeks of the Normandy campaign, interpret the accord and cordiality between Moscow and Paris as giving De Gaulle's regime a small triumph over Washington and London diplomacy.

Signature of the Franco-soviets alliance confirms pretty much what was forecast when De Gaulle was invited to Moscow just after Churchill's visit to Paris in early November.

See Hand Strengthened.

The French think it will give them a strengthened hand to deal with the Germans and a greater part in European councils in postwar talks. They smarted over being left out of the Teheran conference a year ago, and over Gen. Jan Christiaan Smuts' declaration that France was a ruined nation, out of the international picture for at least 50 years, if not forever.

With the Russians back in their historic relationship with the Paris government—much stress is laid on the history of French and Russian alliances in the last two centuries—the French seem to feel they will get support in the project for control of the left bank of the Rhine and curbing German war industries in the Ruhr, a large share in the task of occupation, and support in shaping new frontiers.

French commentators declare the Russian alliance means the Kremlin believes France will be the only other continental power of any potential economic and military strength once Germany is knocked out.

Regional Plan Loses.

They also see in the alliance between the French and Russians, as between the British and Russians, a discrediting of the regional alliance plan for preservation of collective security and dependence, instead, on interlocking military agreements between great powers for preserving world peace.

The French, according to commentators in the last few days, have been willing to concede Russian claims to transport German workers to Russia to repair the damage done by German armies in return for Russian support of the French demands to remove from Germany industrial machinery equivalent to what the Germans took from France during the occupation.

London Press Noncommital.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 11 [Monday].—London's conservative newspapers, which usually reflect the British government's official party line, this morning refrained from expressing views about the new Franco-Russian pact of alliance and mutual assistance.

SCHEDULED TO PLAY THE REINDEER

DEATH SENTENCE FOR VICHY OFFICIAL UPSET BY A FRENCH COURT

PARIS, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Appellate court at Lyon today refused to uphold the conviction and death sentence meted out by a collaboration court to Angelo Angeli, Vichy regional prefect, and ordered a new trial—the first time that this has occurred since the purge trials were begun in France.

The French press agency reported the high court had based its decision on the fact that several witnesses had failed to appear after being cited and that the magistrate had closed the investigation before all the evidence had been heard. Angeli had been convicted of collusion with the enemy during the occupation.

Former Mayor Marrant of Solliès-Pont in southern France was condemned to death on a collaborationist charge in a trial at Toulon.

Purvis, Former G-Man, Aids War Crimes Group

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10 (AP).—Myron C. Cramer, army judge advocate general, said tonight a war crimes section is collecting information. The new organization will assemble evidence gathered by the army and prepare it for action against enemy war criminals. Weir's staff will include Col. Melvin Purvis, former G-man noted for his part in the Dillinger case.

Cigaret Shortage Worry Makes Yanks Smoke More

Camp Lee, Va., Dec. 10 (AP).—The Camp Lee Traveler, post newspaper, making a survey of the cigaret situation among soldiers here, reported that some said they were smoking more because of "worry over the cigaret shortage."

9 Inch Snow Sets 5 Year Record Here

Chicago lay blanketed under more than nine inches of snow last night, after the middle west's first big storm of the season had snarled transportation and made driving hazardous thruout the section. It was Chicago's heaviest snow since the 15 inch storm on Jan. 30, 1939.

Earl S. Hanlon, government forecaster, predicted that the city snowfall, which turned to sleet at midnight, would total at least 10 inches early today, when the storm was expected to break up into flurries. He also forecast slightly colder weather, compared with temperatures slightly below freezing which packed yesterday's moisture sodden snow into a slippery carpet.

Made More Hazardous.

The mild weather, while it limited the normal depth of the snow, made the storm more hazardous. Motorists, cautioned by the Chicago Motor club not to exceed 15 or 20 miles an hour, found even a snail's pace did not prevent their cars from skidding. State and county highway maintenance crews and park police kept roads open with snow plows and sanded slippery sections.

Two traffic deaths were caused by the storm. William H. Sanders, 48, of 7108 Pershing rd., Berwyn, was fatally injured when his auto skidded into a utility pole on route 66 near Gage av., in Lyons. John Sharpe, 62, of Crete, was killed when his car skidded into a light pole on Dixie highway, south of Old South Trail in South Chicago Heights.

Car Hit by Train.

William J. Murphy, 48, and his wife, Mary, 33, of 2119 S. Oak Park av., Berwyn, were injured when their car slid into the path of an elevated railroad train at Clarence av., in the suburb.

In the forest preserve near 87th st. and Western av., where crowds happily started winter sports, Alfredo Silva, 23, a civil engineer at the Dodge Chicago plant, died of a heart attack while tobogganing. His home was at 1443 Jackson blvd.

George Winikates, 41, a sheet metal worker, died of a heart attack while shoveling snow from the sidewalk in front of his home at 1824 N. Linder av.

Among scores who fell on the slippery pavements was Miss Lena Bagbey, 29, of Detroit, Mich., who incurred a possible skull fracture in front of a bus station at Roosevelt rd. and Wabash av.

Storm Cuts Visibility.

Poor visibility extended thruout the storm area, including eastern Iowa, northern Illinois, northern Indiana, lower Michigan, and southern Wisconsin, where a 10 inch snowfall was expected. Oklahoma was to get more snow. Snow also was forecast from Ohio to the Atlantic seaboard.

A snowstorm, which began Friday, continued over Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, and Colorado, contributing to six deaths.

Most plane travel from Chicago was halted. Buses, street cars, and elevated trains and other transportation continued to operate.

The heaviest snowfall, measuring from four to 10 inches, was reported in a belt thru central Illinois, from Pittsfield to Carlinville, and Pana to Paris. State police of district 1, comprising eight northern Illinois counties, said more than 70 snow plows and tow trucks were in operation on roads.

20th Century Limited Won't Run Christmas Eve

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—The New York Central railroad announced tonight that for the first time since World War I. the Twentieth Century Limited would not run Christmas eve. They said they expected travel Dec. 24 would be so light that running of the daily train between New York and Chicago would be unwarranted.

CLATTER! CLATTER! IT HAPPENS AT LAST: A BATTLE IN CHINA SHOP

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

WITH THE 3D ARMY, Dec. 10.—One part of Saareguemines sounded and looked like a Coney Island shooting gallery today when Yanks and two companies of Germans battled for possession of a ceramic plant.

For four hours the crash of crockery, vases and porcelains could be heard above the machine guns as elements of the 35th division fought from behind pottery moulding machines, crates of dishes and anything else that would afford protection.

The Jerries had first started to defend the plant from doorways and windows, but when driven into the factory itself, the real battle began. The advance was made from crate to crate, with great piles of earthenware reverting to dust.

The finale came with a bang when the G. I.'s routed the Germans with hand grenades. The clatter that followed was something that few who took part will ever forget.

THOUSANDS OF JAPS CAUGHT IN ONE MILE TRAP

Yamashita's Entire Line Threatened.

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Philippines, Dec. 11 [Monday] — (AP).—Four days after the American 77th division surprised the Japanese with landings on the west coast of Leyte Island, it captured Ormoc, vital enemy supply port, yesterday.

The capture came in midafternoon after an attack launched in the morning from the vicinity of Camp Downes, on the southern outskirts of Ormoc.

MacArthur said the 7th division pushing up from the south is less than a mile from a junction with the 77th in Ormoc. Yanks moving westward from Burauen have made contact with the 7th near Albuera.

Thousands in Trap.

"Trapped and compressed into a narrow pocket by these three allied columns," the bulletin said, "the enemy's forces in the southern segment of the Yamashita line, altho many thousands strong, are unable to extricate themselves.

"They are being destroyed with little opportunity for effective retaliation."

After destruction of the enemy force, Gen. MacArthur said, "We will be in a position to take the northern segment of the Yamashita line in reverse." Northern fighting is on a line north from Ormoc to positions a short distance south of Limon.

MacArthur said American fighter planes were active in combat over Leyte. Fighter planes dropped 268 tons of bombs on runways and installations at Cebu, Negros, Panay, and Masbate Islands.

Seventh Closing In.

WITH U. S. 7TH DIVISION, LEYTE, Philippines, Dec. 9 [Delayed]—(AP).—The United States 7th division appeared today to have broken the back of Japanese resistance in the southern sector on the west coast of Leyte Island.

The doughboys are mopping up enemy pockets as they roll northward toward a juncture with the 77th division on its beachhead around Ormoc.

Whatever is left of the Japanese army's crack 26th division, which had the prime mission here of annihilating the United States 7th, is being squeezed into an ever-narrowing corridor between the two American forces.

Yanks Scale a Hill.

Abandoned enemy ammunition dumps found by the Americans and the light resistance encountered indicate that the Japanese are retreating north where they may be forced into a suicide stand.

Col. Curtis O'Sullivan of Napa, Cal., a front line officer, said the Japanese, up to two days ago, had been fighting a skilful delaying action by making the most of the rugged terrain.

After the 7th division scaled hill 606 overlooking the valley beyond, the Japanese made only half-hearted stands.

In a great surge, American infantry men, supported by light tanks, swept across Calingatngan and Sibugay rivers, swollen by rain, and on past the smoldering ruins of Albuera village, seven miles south of Ormoc.

Some 6 Foot Japs.

Most of the Japanese of the 26th division have been tough fellows, O'Sullivan said. Some of those whose bodies litter the battlefield were over 6 feet tall.

The progress of the 7th until two days ago was slowed by rugged ridges covered with bamboo thickets, where the Japanese deployed for their rear guard action. The Americans pounded them heavily with artillery.

The 7th now holds commanding positions in the southern sector.

BLAME BRITAIN AND RUSSIA FOR PROLONGED WAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—The authoritative Army and Navy Journal in its current issue says Washington expectations that the war in Europe would be over by now have not been realized because Russia and Great Britain have been too preoccupied with issues other than the defeat of Germany.

"Since D-day in France, greater preoccupation has been shown by Russia in her Baltic and Balkan campaigns, intended to insure her security, and by Great Britain in Italy, Greece and Albania to protect her life line thru the Mediterranean to India, than in the achievement of the prime objective of our armies—the prompt defeat of Germany and concentration of all possible power to that end," the magazine said.

Goal Not Achieved.

"The result has been that the expectation in Washington that the war in Europe would be over by the Pearl Harbor anniversary this week, has not been realized, and in the liberated countries there have been communistic and British interference and clashing which necessarily affect military operations."

The journal said it hoped "that Marshal Stalin, instead of authorizing operations which are calculated to expand soviet influence, will directly attack Germany proper in the east, and thus relieve the pressure on our armies in the west." It said such coöperation would insure prompt attainment of the unconditional surrender of Germany and would mean the saving of American life "and in the end, Russian life as well."

The journal said the policies of Marshal Stalin are causing trouble in liberated areas where Communists are seeking to take power. It said disturbances in Belgium and Holland, which were suppressed by allied arms because they were in the zone of military operations, were promoted by Communists.

No Brake on Communists.

"It was expected from the attitude of Marshal Stalin a year ago that he would coöperate to establish and maintain law and order, and it is hoped he will continue to do so, tho Communist activities would indicate that no effective brake has been applied to those ideologists, and it would seem that the policy the soviet union has pursued has operated to encourage them," the journal said.

It said Stalin has persisted in demanding that the Polish government in exile shall have personnel friendly to his government, and that he has refused to reëstablish diplomatic relations with Switzerland because of government personnel described as hostile to Russia.

Because of Stalin's stand, the journal said, it is the British contention that their government is justified in supporting the Papandreou government in Greece and in objecting to Count Sforza serving as foreign minister of Italy.

"No Victory Before Autumn."

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—Don Whitehead, Associated Press war correspondent just returned from the western front, said tonight in a radio speech that he thought Germany would not be defeated before next fall.

Report Roosevelt Willing to Replace Mme. Perkins

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10 [Special].—President Roosevelt is willing to replace Secretary of Labor Perkins if the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations can agree upon a candidate, it was reported in government circles today. War Man Power Commissioner McNutt, James McGranery, formerly member of congress from Philadelphia, and Daniel J. Tobin, head of the AFL International Brotherhood of Teamsters, are among those under consideration for the post, it was said.

YANKS ATTACK ALONG TEN MILE FRONT ON ROER

3d Army Fights to Hold Bridgeheads.

PARIS, Dec. 10 (AP).—United States 1st army infantry men opened a drive against the enemy's last footholds west of the Roer river at dawn today and by nightfall had gained nearly a mile, captured four towns and fought into three others.

Their concerted blows rained down along a 10 mile, snow covered front after 500 medium bombers and fighter-bombers and hundreds of big guns had pulverized enemy positions in their path.

The 1st army loosed its biggest attack in a week as the United States 3d army beat off four attacks against its Saar bridgeheads. The 7th army on the east, hurdling the water barriers of northern Alsace, fought house to house in Hagenau, most important enemy base left in France.

Fight in 6 Inches of Snow.

Lt. Gen. Hodges' 1st army jumped off in six inches of snow, and as more fell intermittently Yanks bent back the enemy's whole Roer river line before the main fortress of Duren. At some places the Americans were only a few hundred yards from the river.

So effective was the preliminary barrage, which opened before dawn, that on some sectors tanks and infantry were driving east against little or no enemy artillery fire.

The American assault lines stretched from Schophoven, six miles northwest of Duren, to Schafberg, five miles southwest of Duren. Latest accounts presented this picture of the attack from north to south:

Hodges' troops were within 500 yards of Schophoven, almost on the Roer, and were fighting across open, rolling country.

One mile south they entered the outskirts of Pier, less than a mile from the Roer. Ope unit fought into the center of the town, ran into heavy fire, and withdrew to permit artillery to pound the positions.

Take Vital High Ground.

Another force moved a half mile out of Lucherberg, a mile south of Pier, and took vital high ground in concert with other troops just to the south who moved nearly a mile out of Luchem toward Echtz, two and a half miles northwest of Duren.

Biggest gains were rolled up by a tank paced attack which overran Geich and Obergeich, three and a half miles west and slightly north of Duren and within two and a half miles of the Roer.

Hodges' forces fought into the bitterly defended forest town of Merode, three and a half miles west of Duren, where two "lost" companies of the 1st division had been cut off but refused to surrender.

They captured Gey, a village four miles southwest of Duren, overwhelmed Strass, 1,000 yards southeast, and pressed into Schafberg, another 1,000 yards to the south.

Bomb Dams and Canals.

Renewed thrusts were indicated by air activity. Some 500 sorties were flown by 2d tactical air force fighter bombers and many of them blasted at dams and canal locks with the announced purpose of creating floods to block enemy retreat.

Besides smashing a Schophoven bridge, Thunderbolt bombs opened up another highway bridge over the Roer near Nideggen, seven miles south of Duren.

[A Berlin military commentator called this a "large scale attack" and said that smoke screens shrouding the United States 9th army front to the north along the Roer's west bank indicated a drive there was imminent.]

No changes were reported on the British-Canadian sector of the front in Holland, and Lt. Gen. Simpson's American 9th army dueled with German artillery and mortar units across the Roer river.

3d Repels Counter-Attacks.

In the battle for Germany's Saar basin, Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army threw back four tank supported counter-attacks and took 1,150 prisoners.

The heaviest fighting was raging inside the Siegfried line fortifications around the fortified city of Dillingen, three miles north of Saarlautern. A fifth of Dillingen was in American hands. Dillingen, a town of 15,000 to 20,000 population, was a maze of pillboxes and fortress cellars. The railroad station in Saarlautern was captured, the Germans were cleared from a hotel strongpoint and nine pillboxes inside the city were knocked out.

On the lower part of the 3d army front the Germans hurled 20 tanks and tank riding infantry into two assaults aimed at the 35th division's bridgeheads near Sarreinsming and Wittring, two and five miles southeast of Sarreguemines. Two enemy tanks were destroyed.

Biggest Gain Near Rohrbach.

Biggest Patton gains were recorded near Rohrbach, 10 miles southeast of Sarreguemines, where the Americans moved on a mile and a half.

The 3d army's 26th infantry division, which joined up yesterday with the 35th division on the east bank of the Saar, pressed northward up to a mile and captured Gros Rederching, three miles from the Saar basin's border southeast of virtually liberated Sarreguemines.

The 35th division moved into the northern portion of Sarreguemines on the east bank of the Saar and after routing the Germans from a big ceramics factory in a brisk engagement had cleaned out nearly all that section of the city by nightfall.

Other elements hacked out gains of a half mile to a mile north and east of Sarreguemines.

Germans in Civilian Clothes.

In Sarreguemines, troops of the German 17th S. S. panzer [armored] division were donning civilian clothes and engaging in street sniping. Some were caught and presumably dealt with, since under military law they are subject to trial and execution.

The American 7th army of Lt. Gen. Patch kept up the pressure eastward all the way to the Rhine. His 79th division infantry drove into the southwestern part of Haguenau and were battling house to house after breaking thru bunkers emplaced along railway tracks on the southwest.

Niederbronn, 11 miles northwest of Haguenau, was cleared of the enemy, and Patch's forces pushed on to a point less than four miles from the Palatinate border, their closest approach to Germany.

Haguenau also was hard pressed from the southeast, where the Americans captured Bischwiller, considered a key to the city's defenses.

Capture Kaltenhouse.

Driving northwest, these forces captured Kaltenhouse, on the main highway two miles from Hagenau, and reached nearby Marienthal. Other units seized Oberhoffen, three-quarters of a mile north of Bischwiller, after crossing the Moder river.

At the western end of the front, where the 7th is moving on the Saar in concert with the 3d, the last Germans were rooted from Binning, six miles from the border.

In southern Alsace, the French 1st army captured the enemy stronghold of Thann, 10 miles northwest of Mulhouse, as it pressed eastward against an enemy withdrawing across the Rhine.

Floods slowed American and French forces trying to close the gap between them north and south of German-held Colmar, but the 1st tactical air force poured 30 tons of bombs on the Rhine rail bridge at Neuf-Brisach, one of the last escape spans for the enemy east of Colmar.

Americans Smash Ahead Thru Snow

RAIL JUNCTIONS ON RHINE BOMBED BY 2,000 PLANES

Yanks Blast Coblenz and Bingen.

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP).—Nearly 2,000 American war planes saturated the congested rail yards of Coblenz and Bingen on the Rhine today with 1,500 tons of explosives. Bomb bays had to be cranked open by hand after freezing shut in 50 degree below zero weather.

For the second successive day, fleets of British-based aircraft of the United States 8th air force hit vital military targets in Germany without being molested by the German air force or encountering much flak.

The American losses in yesterday's raid on Stuttgart and the double blow on Coblenz and Bingen today were seven bombers and one fighter missing, out of 2,700—a record low in United States losses for operations of this size.

River and Rail Junctions.

Coblenz and Bingen, 30 miles to the south, are river and rail transportation junctions, vital for lateral movement of supplies in the rear of the battle lines as well as for direct distribution of equipment to the front.

A force of Mosquitos bombed Berlin last night—handing the Nazi capital its 185th raid of the war.

R. A. F. Typhoons scored direct hits with 1,000 pound bombs on a dam, 12 miles northwest of Nijmegen.

Send Up Jet Planes.

ROME, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Germans sent up at least eight of their new jet-propelled fighters in vain efforts Saturday to head off United States 15th air force Fortresses and Liberators attacking targets at Linz, Austria, Pilsen in Czechoslovakia, and Regensburg in southern Germany.

The "jets" did not get a single American plane and suffered no losses when they tangled with the bombers and their Lightning and Mustang escorts.

BRITAIN TO FREE CHANNEL ISLES AFTER THE WAR

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP).—The liberation of Britain's Channel islands must wait until the end of the war, it was disclosed today. The islands of Guernsey, Jersey, Alderney, and Sark, a few miles off the Cherbourg peninsula, are considered of insufficient importance to divert a force from the main task of invading Germany.

It is estimated the German garrison of the islands numbers about 15,000. To attack them with guns and bombs would mean casualties among the 65,000 Britons who remain there.

Herbert Hopgood, a secretary of the Channel Islands Refugee association, said today that starvation and lack of medical supplies under German rule threaten as great a loss of life as bombs and shells might cause.

2 CHICAGOANS LEAD TANKS IN ROER RIVER PUSH

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 9TH ARMY IN GERMANY, Dec. 10. — Thru the Africa and Sicily campaigns, across Europe from the Normandy beaches into Germany without a scratch, is the record of two Chicago tank men fighting with an armored division west of the Roer river. They are Staff Sergeants Joseph Postava, 2219 N. Lorel av., and Tony Setnicker, 6318 S. Knox av.

Each is leader of a platoon of light tanks and, altho they insist they have been lucky because nothing really has happened to them, they have had their share of adventures. Postava holds the bronze star for leaving the comparative safety of his tank during battle to help a wounded infantryman under German artillery and mortar fire.

"Couldn't Leave Him There."

"It wasn't anything," said the 31 year old former steel worker. "I just saw him there and got out to help him get under cover. I couldn't leave him there even if a battle was going on."

Other men of Postava's unit, however, tell of shells dropping close enough to rock his tank and tearing up the ground within a few feet from where he rescued his comrade.

When his lieutenant was wounded, Setnicker took over the five tank platoon and directed it thru the entire engagement without a hitch, receiving the high praise of his commanding officers. Before joining the army early in 1941, he was a shipping clerk. He and Postava said about the worst time they had was when breaking thru the Siegfried line they were forced to live 22 days inside their tanks because they were under continuous German fire and it was worth any one's life even to pop his head out.

"No Place to Go."

This meant four men were living, eating and sleeping within the narrow confines of a light tank which, as Setnicker put it, was not like living at the Ritz.

"That was bad and then I remember the time the lieutenant's tank was knocked out," Postava said. "He rapped on the hatch of my tank and told me to find another while he took my place. I got outside and with every one buttoned up [the hatch closed] there wasn't any place to go.

"I ran around trying to find some one to let me in but German stuff began coming over and I finally had to crawl into a hole. I spent the next two days with the infantry. Those guys really have a tough job and it's much rougher than we've had before."

See Frisch and Walters.

But the two veteran tank men said they weren't thinking much about their past adventures today. Grinning happily, they explained that Frankie Frisch and Bucky Walters were here, the first big league baseball players many in this outfit had seen in over two years. Afterwards they are going to see the world series movies run off on a screen within sight of German positions across the Roer.

PARIS CAPTURED 60 DAYS EARLY, SAYS PATTERSON

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10 (AP).—Paris was taken by the allies 60 days ahead of schedule, Undersecretary of War Patterson said today in an address for a radio symphony hour, in which he emphasized the government's plea for greater production of war goods.

The whole of France and Belgium also was cleared "months ahead of schedule" altho the allies had fallen behind the military timetable when they were penned up, at the outset, on the Normandy peninsula, he said.

"The desperate need remains to increase production to meet the accelerated pitch of the great offensive," he said.

Patterson asserted that in the three months after the invasion of Normandy American troops fired 1,300,000 rounds of mortar ammunition, 300 million rounds of small arms ammunition, 4½ million rounds for 105s, 1¼ million rounds for 155s. He told also of heavy expenditure of tanks, jeeps, and planes.

MEN ARE MEN

Even at Christmas

Christmas comes but once a year.

But men are men 12 months a year... including Christmas. Their hearts may be warmer, but their habits of dress are not altered by the Yule holiday.

Thus you will never find anything bearing the Broadstreet's label that was created merely for the moment.

You will find in the Broadstreet's stores apparel and accessories for men enduring in quality and long-lived in style.

We avoid the faddish as surely as we reject the shoddy. For the former will not live long, while the latter will not last long.

May we suggest, with appropriate but unblushing modesty, that if your Xmas gifts for a man bear the Broadstreet's label they will be as well received as if he had selected them himself?

CANADIANS AT FRONT DISCUSS EFFECT OF DRAFT

Chief Concern Is Fighting Skill of New Men.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 10.—The necessity to resort to conscription in Canada to keep the Canadian units on the battle fronts here and in Italy up to fighting strength has raised the question among some of Canada's proudest volunteer forces as to what effect the introduction of soldiers who do not want to fight overseas will have on their own ranks.

Gen. H. D. G. Crerar.

According to all reports, however, the volunteers here agree this must be done if the voluntary system breaks down.

"I have just returned from the Canadian 1st army," a captain told this correspondent, "and as far as I could learn the conclusion seems to be: 'We do not mind fighting side by side with the Zombies [hitherto, home defense conscripts] as long as they know how to handle guns and fight.'"

Two Divisions in Italy.

Canada has raised a formidable army and sent it overseas on the volunteer system. The Canadian 1st army under Gen. H. D. G. Crerar comprises the Canadian 2d and 3d infantry divisions and the Canadian 4th armored division which was organized in 1940. The 1st and 5th infantry divisions are fighting in Italy.

More than 40 regiments coming from all parts of Canada, including Le Regiment de la Chaudiere from Quebec, have been identified among the Canadians in this theater. Many of these received their baptism of fire in this war at Dieppe in 1942, altho many of their regimental histories began with that of Canada. Some of these others played important parts in the landings in Sicily as well as on the Normandy beachheads.

The Canadian 1st army was on the left flank of the Normandy landings and later had the difficult task of driving the Germans out of the pocket south of the Schelde river which was essential before the port of Antwerp could be opened for allied use.

Crossed Causeway.

The Germans put up strong resistance but the Canadians cleared the enemy from south of the Schelde and negotiated the tough job of crossing the causeway onto South Beveland Island against concentrated enemy artillery, mortar and small arms fire.

Before these actions the losses at Dieppe had necessitated replacements in some of Canada's finest units. Among those taking part in the Dieppe raid were the Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders, the Black Watch, the Essex Scots, Les Fusiliers Mont Royal, the Queen's Own Rifles, the Royal Hamilton light infantry, the Royal regiment, the South Saskatchewan regiment and the Toronto Scottish regiment. Some of these suffered heavy losses in the raid.

The First Hussars which went into the Normandy beachhead was organized in 1872. In the history of the various units one sees some created when it was thought necessary to "meet the growing threat of military action by the United States." The Loren Scots is one of those. It was organized in 1886. There is the Governor General's Foot Guards—the Sherbrooke Fusiliers—dating back to 1867.

Supporter of Infantry.

Gen. Crerar, after the British staff talks in 1940 following the collapse of France, and Dunkerque, disagreed with the school of military thought which demanded tanks to the exclusion and neglect of all other arms. Crerar was convinced that modern infantry trained and equipped and keyed to the new fast tactics, would remain the backbone of the ground army.

Gen. Crerar is 55 and under him are fighting some of the youngest high ranking officers in the allied forces. Maj. Gen. Daniel Charles Spry, 31, commands an infantry brigade. Lt. Gen. G. G. Simonds, 40, a professional soldier who was one of the first men ashore in Sicily and in Italy, is commander of the Canadian 2d corps. Lt. Gen. Kenneth Stuart, who took over as chief of staff of Canadian military headquarters in London last January, is 53.

Young Major Generals.

Commanders of the two other divisions whose presence on the western front is announced are Maj. Gen. Charles Floukes, 41, and Maj. Gen. Rodney Frederick Leopold Keller, 44. Another major general, is 53.

Fighting in the Canadian organizations are boys from all parts of Canada but they are kept in their old town units and not dispersed as are soldiers in a reorganized American army. Among the regiments are the Algonquin, Sutherland Highlanders, South Alberta, Manitoba, Calgary Highlanders, Canadian Scottish, Lincoln and Welland, Regina Rifles, Royal Winnipeg Rifles, Stormont Dundas, Glengarry Highlanders, the South Saskatchewan, and others.

These units are proud of their records and traditions as free men. All of the Canadians' allies have had to use the draft for a job which the Canadians, so far, have been fortunate enough to be able to do on the voluntary system. Canadian volunteers over here now are reverting to the old argument in favor of conscription, that the fairest of all systems is to utilize the armed forces according to man power strength and distribute the casualties accordingly.

LEFTISTS INSIST FRANCO IS OUT AS SPAIN RULER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 10.—Despite denials from sources attributed to London, Spanish leftist leaders in Paris and dispatches supposedly from Spanish border correspondents insisted today that Gen. Franco is out and a new government would be formed as soon as opposition chiefs could get together.

Miguel Maura, Spanish republican leader, declared in Paris that Franco resigned Friday. He said he would go to Spain to take charge of the change of regime.

All this rumbling along the Spanish frontier is viewed with high concern in Paris on the eve of Gen. De Gaulle's return to France from Russia, for the Russians played for high stakes in Spain in 1936 and 1937 by backing the supporters of the Spanish republic against the Germans and Italians who aided Franco and his Fascist forces.

TENTH SIEGE OF HISTORIC JULICH BEGUN BY YANKS

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 9TH ARMY IN GERMANY, Dec. 10.—American troops were dug in today around the German sports stadium on the outskirts of Julich, west of the Roer river. It was the scene of seven days of fighting before the remainder of the German garrison was forced to surrender.

The 10th siege of the historic city now is about to begin with doughboys as close as 40 yards to the Germans, and in some places separated only by the river.

German resistance in the sports stadium and a neighboring farm was smashed when American artillery destroyed bridges leading into the town behind them. Before that the enemy command rotated the defenders, who had been ordered to hold to the last man, sending fresh replacements across the river every two days and withdrawing what was left of previous units after their two days of constant bombardment from the air and ground.

Cut Off Two Days.

When the Germans surrendered they had been cut off for two days, food gone, telephone communication to the east bank severed, and batteries for their radio dead. The doughboys made a final assault, using grenades and bayonets to rout the Nazis from their entrenchments and gun emplacements. Only 40 prisoners were taken.

The sports stadium consisted of an oval arena flanked by a swimming pool and a soccer field. Brick walls of the arena, behind which the Nazis had fought desperately, now were battered down in some places and punched with scores of holes from our shelling. Inside, instead of seats the ground rolls upward around the edges, making a natural amphitheater.

Dates to Roman Times.

The town of Julich, into which infantry men can now fire their rifles, dates back to pre-Roman times. It was the key fortification centuries ago on the main Roman road from Maastricht to Cologne because of its location on the Roer river. The first duke of its ruling family was Gerhardt I., who was named reichsmarchal in the year 912 by Emperor Otto I. There is another Gerhardt near by on the west bank of the river—Maj. Gen. Charles H. Gerhardt, commander of the 29th division.

During the 16th century Julich was united with the duchy of Cleve, which occupied a strategic position between the French, German, Spanish, and Dutch. It was besieged and captured in 1610 by Maurice of Nassau. It also figured in the Thirty Years' war, changed hands several times, and the Seven Years war later, being occupied by Napoleon.

Later it became a garrison of the Prussian army. Its peace time population was 10,000. The ancient fortifications as well as newer parts of the town have been pounded for weeks by artillery and from the air. Photographs show only about 10 per cent of the buildings still standing.

GEN. IKE TELLS CONGRESSMEN OF SHELL SHORTAGE

PARIS, Dec. 10 (AP).—Gen. Eisenhower today told members of the military affairs committee of the United States house of representatives that the current shell shortage was due to fluctuating conditions of warfare and weather which had upset estimates of ammunition needs.

Eisenhower said the blame could not be placed in any one quarter and added that the main point was to deliver more shells in the shortest possible time. The supreme allied commander also discussed the French military position with the congressional group, saying France will share with other allied nations in the eventual occupation of Germany.

The congressmen visited Eisenhower at his headquarters and brought him a number of Christmas presents, including a bottle of bourbon whisky—which he sent to a hospital.

NEW B-29 RAIDS SET TOKYO AFIRE, JAPAN REPORTS

Super Forts Also Hit Korean Targets.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

American Super Fortresses appeared over Tokyo for the second time Sunday night and Monday morning [Japanese time] and "dropped some bombs," the Japanese radio reported.

Fires were started in the city, said a French language broadcast, recorded by the federal communications commission, but "were put out speedily." There was no allied confirmation of the raids.

Earlier the radio had reported that Super Fortresses had been over Japan at 10:30 a. m. Sunday [Tokyo time], apparently with reconnaissance as their objective.

The radio said that "air raid defenses drove off the raiders before they could do any real damage."

Report Fires Started.

An earlier broadcast said two Marianas based Super Fortresses had penetrated to metropolitan Tokyo at 8:30 p. m. Sunday [Japanese time], and had dropped many incendiary bombs and caused fires, but fled under heavy anti-aircraft fire.

The Japanese reported Super Forts also visited western Japan Saturday night and Kyushu Island and Korea Sunday morning.

The Japanese Domei agency said a lone B-29 was over the Fusan region of Korea while another was over the western part of that country.

Tokyo reported incendiary bombs were dropped in the western Japan raid, but that no attack was made on Kyushu. It added "it appeared as if these planes had reconnaissance for their objective."

A Japanese bulletin said Nippon airmen set fire to at least five grounded Super Forts at a base west of Calcutta, India, Dec. 7.

Capital Blacked Out.

TWENTY-FIRST BOMBER COMMAND, Saipan, Dec. 9 [Delayed]—(AP).—Tokyo is blacking out at night now. The Japanese capital was brightly lighted during the early B-29 raids, and the Japanese radio boasted that there was nothing to fear from the American raiders. But a reconnaissance Super Fortress which bombed the city shortly before dawn today found even the suburbs dark.

Not only Tokyo, but Yokohama and other cities were blacked out, the commander, Lt. John Thomas Garvin, North Bergen, N. J., said. The only lights were at Chofu airdrome, 17 miles from Tokyo, where three Japanese planes were going in with landing lights on.

Garvin bombed the capital's industrial center between the Sumida river and the Ara waterway thru a partial overcast. His crew saw the bombs glow against clouds.

With Garvin were 2d Lieutenants Edwin Seitz, Walkerton, Ind.; Harold Erlandson, Kansas City, Mo.; Henry Leight Miller, Riverdale, Md., and Richard Bauml, Rochester, N. Y.; and Staff Sgt. John Joseph Ciezaerk, 3442 N. Central Park av., Chicago.

HERE ARE SOME JAP SLOGANS WE CAN AGREE WITH

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The Japanese, in a Tokyo radio broadcast Sunday, listed 24 Jap "suicide" airmen who, it was claimed, crashed their bomb laden planes into American ships in Surigao strait, Ormoc bay, and Leyte gulf. The broadcast said suicide flyers sank two large transports and 16 landing barges, damaged one warship and four large transports, and blasted Ormoc landing beaches.

Maj. Gen. Shuichi Matsumura, chief of the Japanese army press section, highly praised the airmen. He quoted these slogans of the suicide squadrons:

"In serving on the seas, be a corpse saturated with water.

"In serving on land, be a corpse covered with weeds.

"In serving in the sky, be a corpse that challenges the clouds.

"Let's all die close by the side of our sovereign."

REVEAL BRITAIN HAS TWO FLEETS TO FIGHT JAPAN

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP). — Britain now has two fleets to hurl against the Japanese, one in the Pacific and the other in the Indian ocean. The admiralty tonight announced appointment of the men who are to command the new fleets.

Adm. Bruce A. Fraser.

The British Pacific fleet is an entirely new command under Adm. Bruce A. Fraser, aged 55, a gunnery expert. The fleet of the East Indies station is under Vice Adm. Arthur J. Power.

Will Operate Anywhere.

Fraser since August has been commander in chief of the eastern fleet and Power his second in command. The East Indies station lapsed when the Japanese overran the Malayan peninsula and captured Singapore.

The admiralty declined to describe the limits of Fraser's command, but informed quarters believed his fleet would operate in any section of the Pacific where its power was needed.

It was believed there would be no appointment of a supreme allied commander responsible to the combined chiefs of staff, but that Fraser's fleet would operate under command of Adm. Nimitz in the Central Pacific or under Gen. MacArthur in the Southwest Pacific, as strategy demands.

Supports Mountbatten.

The East Indies station command would provide floating power to support Adm. Mountbatten's advance back into lower Burma and Malaya, or to slash at Japanese sea communications anywhere between Rangoon and Rabaul.

Fraser, junior to Nimitz as an admiral by about three years, is known to Britons as the man who sank the Scharnhorst, having been in command of the British home fleet when it sank the German raider off Normandy last December.

Rear Adm. C. S. Daniel, who won the D. S. O. for his anti-submarine work early in the war, has been made vice admiral and placed in charge of administration of the Pacific fleet.

Now Even a Lazy Man Can Lie in Bed and Read

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 10.—A novel method of reading in bed from a "book" projected on the ceiling was described here today. A speaker told the Libraries and Information Bureaus conference that microfilm photographs of pages of a book could be projected on the ceiling and turned by a camera shutter and cable device held beneath the bedclothes.

4 JAP BULLETS FAIL TO DOWN ILLINOIS YANK

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 10. (AP).—Four Japanese machine gun bullets struck Pvt. Bruce Crandall, 21, a machine gunner from Paxton, Ill., last July at Afu village, New Guinea, but they didn't even knock him down.

Crandall fought on after he was wounded in the left eye, cheek, left hand, and left arm, and until his vision dimmed and he no longer could see the enemy.

Both eyes were swollen shut. He groped his way back 30 yards from his machine gun position—which, so close were the lines at Afu, was 40 feet from the Japanese weapon which had wounded him.

A medical soldier bandaged his wounds under fire and Crandall's platoon leader ordered him to the rear.

"I walked thru the jungle all night," Crandall said in an interview in Letterman hospital here.

"I couldn't see, but I held on to the man in front of me, another walking wounded case.

"I couldn't open my eyes and I was afraid I had been blinded for life. But I wasn't bitter or resentful. I remembered the buddies I had seen killed, and what I was sore about was that I had been put out of the fight before I had killed more Japs."

As a result of his wounds Crandall lost the sight of the left eye.

POLISH LEADER ASK HELP FOR EUROPEAN JEWS

A plea to "awaken Jews and America that they might organize help for the last remnant of Jews in war torn Europe" was made yesterday by Dr. Ignacy Schwartzbart, member of the Polish parliament in exile, in a series of five meetings thruout Chicago.

Dr. I. Schwartzbart.

"Five million of our race have been slaughtered in 19 countries of Europe," he said, "but it is not too late to help the 4 million still left who are spiritually and economically broken."

Dr. Schwartzbart, who came to this country to attend the World Jewish conference in Atlantic City last month, said the mass killing of Jews by the Gestapo has now been confirmed by the war refugee board.

The speaker, brought to Chicago by the Chicago division of the American Jewish Congress, asserted the Jewish people should be given the opportunity to return to their homes, but added that he did not believe there would be many who ever would return to Germany. "The Germans have been poisoned for 10 years by Hitler propaganda," he said, "and conditions there for the Jews could never be ideal again."

REDS 7 MILES FROM BUDAPEST IN NORTH SECTOR

Closer to City on East and South.

LONDON, Dec. 11 [Monday]—(AP).—A Red army battering ram smashed along the Danube's east bank yesterday to within seven miles north of Budapest, as other Russian columns far to the north reached the central Slovakian border on a front of at least 11 miles.

Soviet tanks and infantry, overcoming stiff German resistance bolstered by fresh armor and motorized SS [elite guard] divisions, smashed six miles from Vacs and captured Alsogod in the closest approach to Budapest from the north.

More than 40 places fell yesterday to Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2d Ukraine army north and northeast of Budapest, the soviet war bulletin said. From Dec. 5 to yesterday his forces captured 5,600 prisoners.

35 Mile Arc Open.

The drive that resulted in the capture of Alsogod was part of an enveloping move on shell-torn Budapest. Only about a 35 mile arc on the western side of the city remained to be closed.

On the south the Russians already were within five miles of the capital and within three miles on the east.

There was no mention in the Moscow bulletin of activity other than north and northeast of Budapest. But the Germans disclosed the Russians had thrust up the west bank of the Danube southwest of the capital to Erd, less than five miles southwest from its outskirts.

The Germans said Erd was recaptured, but the Russians have never claimed it.

Advance Near Slovakia.

Along the Slovak frontier the Russians advanced more than nine miles from Balassagyarmat and captured the road junction of Dregelypalank, on the Slovak frontier.

Towns captured near the Slovak frontier included Deitar, six miles southwest of Balassagyarmat, and Ipolyvecze, another four miles beyond Deitar.

Fronts far to the north of Hungary came in for brief mention in the supplement to the soviet war report. Six German attempts to capture a Russian stronghold west of Jelgava in Latvia were repelled, the supplement said.

TELLS HOW U. S. SHIPS POWDERED IWO WITH GUNS

Circle Isle and Shell It for an Hour.

SAIPAN, Dec. 9 [Delayed]—(AP).—Firing salvos every 20 seconds, American cruisers and destroyers slowly paraded around Japan's Iwo Island for a full hour yesterday, pouring 300 tons of explosives into the base.

The warships cut loose on the island shortly after it was battered by twice or three times that weight in aerial bombs dropped by B-29s and B-24s.

There was slight Japanese return fire during the first five minutes and it "didn't even come close," said Associated Press Photographer Charles Gorry.

Smoke Covers Island.

The photographer reported: "An hour before we got to Iwo we could see smoke all over the island from Super Fortress bombs, one column reaching 2,000 feet. Then we saw Liberators come in and lay down the most beautiful bomb pattern I ever saw straight across the island. Not one bomb landed in the water.

"We started shelling at 1:47 p. m. From the north end of Iwo we circled the entire island at about 20 knots, firing salvos every 20 seconds. We finished shelling at 2:47 p. m.

Jap Guns Silenced.

"The Japs opened up with a few 6 inch guns without effect and after five minutes they didn't fire at all. Our destroyers fired 5-inchers all the time. The cruisers used 8-inchers and then closed to 7,000 yards, firing 5-inchers during the last 20 minutes of the bombardment.

"The continuous roar of the guns left us worn out, so I can imagine how it left those Japs on Iwo. We raked every cliff, beach, and air field, and all the gun positions our airmen could spot. A couple of Jap planes hung around, but beyond our range. Evidently they were out of ammunition.

"We were only 700 miles or so from Japan, yet not one Japanese ship or submarine came near."

Rear Adm. Allen E. Smith, commanding the naval force, said the Iwo attack was smoothly handled and well coördinated.

BONOMI FORMS CABINET WITH 2 VICE PREMIERS

Sforza, Objected To by Britain, Left Out.

ROME, Italy, Dec. 10 (AP).—A new government of Premier Ivanoe Bonomi with two vice premiers—the Communist Palmiro Togliatti and the Christian Democrat Giulio Dirodino—was announced officially tonight. Portfolios were distributed evenly among the Liberals, Christian Democrats, Labor Democrats, and Communists—the four parties which decided to support Bonomi in remaking his cabinet.

Palmiro Togliatti.

The Socialists and Actionists, which are the other two parties of the committee of national liberation, had decided to stay out.

Alcide de Gasperi, a Christian Democrat, who formerly was minister without portfolio, is the new foreign minister.

Count Carlo Sforza, minister without portfolio in the last cabinet, who was rejected by Britain for the post of foreign minister, is not a member of the new government.

Keeps Interior Job.

Bonomi himself retains the ministry of the interior.

Besides Di Rodino, a pre-Fascist minister of justice and war, new figures in the government include Liberal Manlio Brosio, a new minister without portfolio, who was a member of a special committee to investigate the Matteotti murder.

Among others were: Liberal Vincenzo Aranzo Ruiz, lawyer and professor of Roman law, minister of education; Labor Democrat M. Cerabona, minister of transportation; Labor Democrat Meuccio Ruini, minister of public works; Labor Democrat Mario Cevolotto, minister of posts and telegraph; Labor Democrat Carlo Sciaoia, minister of air; Communist Mauro Scoccimarro, former commissioner of the Fascist purge, minister of state administration of German occupied territory, a portfolio dealing with patriot activities, and Communist Antonio Pesenti, minister of finance.

War Minister Remains.

Ministers who retain their posts include Liberals Marcello Soleri, minister of the treasury, and Alexander Casati, minister of war; Christian Democrats Giovanni Gronchi, minister of labor, and Minister of Justice Tupini; Communist Fausto Gullo, minister of agriculture, and Independent Raffaele de Courten, minister of the navy.

Earlier, it was learned that Bonomi had written two letters to allied authorities, pledging the goverment would keep the armistice terms and would not raise the question of a monarchy for Italy until after the war. These pledges also were the conditions for allied approval of the first Bonomi government, which resigned two weeks ago.

BATTLE FLARES ANEW IN GREEK RED REBELLION

ELAS Fire Shells at British.

came just as royal air force cannon firing Spitfires were diving low over central Athens, strafing the ELAS' entrenched positions on wooded Ardettus hill and around the Athenian stadium, which has been an ELAS stronghold almost since the revolt started last Sunday.

Shells Surprise Writers.

A dozen planes had completed their attacks when correspondents watching from the roof of the Grande Bretagne hotel were startled by an explosion behind them. Rushing to the other side of the roof, they could see smoke rising just beyond the headquarters building where a shell had hit. A minute later, another crashed into the street beside the headquarters, then two more at brief intervals.

An ironical touch is that the shells fired by the guerrillas landed along a street whose buildings are liberally daubed with such signs as "Greece welcomes its allies," "Welcome to the forces liberating Greece" and the like.

Two other major battles occurred in the last 24 hours. A Greek mountain brigade, formed under British guidance in Egypt and now fighting on the side of Premier George Papandreou's government, discovered ELAS forces in great strength in a wooded area northeast of the Goudi barracks held by the brigade. The ELAS, part of Serafis' heavily armed units, and brigade troops locked in battle.

Rebels Hold High Ground.

R. A. F. planes, British medium tanks and British 25 pounder artillery drove the guerrillas back, inflicting heavy casualties. The brigade knocked out one 75 millimeter gun and captured another. After hours of fighting, however, the ELAS still held the high ground east of the barracks.

Not far from the Athenian stadium, 1,000 guerrillas supported by heavy artillery fire, attacked the gendarmerie barracks but were repulsed by the British holding the barracks.

ELAS forces now are beginning to mine the streets, and early today two British lorries were blown up.

A dangerous truth became evident today. In the first few days of this eight day old war, the guerrillas seemed to be fighting in small groups, with no organization and little planning. By today, however, their activities are becoming coordinated, and it was said the ELAS attacks showed better planning. This probably was due to the presence of Serafis, who is a former colonel in the regular Greek army, and his staff of well trained officers.

Ruthlessness Grows.

A steadily increasing ruthlessness in guerrilla tactics also was evidenced today. After Greek government troops had been sniped at in a hospital area northeast of Athens, British troops invaded the hospital and found beds filled with surprisingly healthy looking men swathed in bandages. Investigation showed the bandages were fake and the "bedridden" actually were ELAS guerrillas.

Women guerrillas also have been caught carrying ammunition for snipers in their shopping baskets. British troops also have reported instances of male guerrillas firing with women as shields.

Despite the ferocity of this struggle, amusing incidents crop up. Two American army officers this morning were jeeping down the street when ELAS snipers opened up on them, putting two bullets thru the windshield, two thru the top, and one into a front tire, blowing it. The irate Americans, who usually are treated as neutral in this war, stopped and began changing the tire. The guerrillas rushed out, discovered they were Americans, cheered for Roosevelt, and then took over the tire changing. Before leaving, the Americans were given a large United States flag by the guerrillas.

AMERICAN AID OF UNRRA HERO IN ATHENS WAR

ATHENS, Greece, Dec. 10 (AP).—Disregarding bullets from machine guns and snipers, Edgar M. Wahlberg of Denver became an American hero of the Athens civil war.

Driving a bullet riddled truck adorned with the Stars and Stripes and a huge Red Cross, Wahlberg, chief welfare officer of the Athens district of the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration, and his assistant, Mrs. Amalia Lykourezou, Greek Red Cross volunteer, rushed from hospital to hospital in the battle zone.

On Friday Wahlberg drove 15 miles out of the city to Kifissia, taking urgently needed food to 300 refugee children from burned villages quartered in a sanitarium there. His was the last delivery to get thru, for later Kifissia was cut off from Athens by the ELAS rebels.

Fail to Get Permission.

"We asked for ELAS permission to make the trip so as to be on the safe side, but it did not come thru," Wahlberg said.

"We got thru okay and then on the way back decided to look in on the Greek Red Cross hospital three miles outside the city on the main Kifissia road. This was in the evening.

"At 3:30 a Greek mountain brigade from the Goudi barracks took the hospital and drove the ELAS out because they had used it as a snipers' nest.

"The condition of the patients was appalling. For 48 hours they had been without water and food. Most of them had been evacuated to the basement where they were lying on litters moaning and begging for water. It was like a corner of a battlefield. Bullets whipped thru the operating theater where surgeons were trying to carry on their work. Every window in the place was smashed."

Has Nurses Released.

Wahlberg declared "The whole place was under constant machine gun and shell fire."

He and Mrs. Lykourezou called on the commander of the Greek gendarmerie, who collaborated with the mountain brigade in taking the hospital from the ELAS, and prevailed on him to release members of the nursing staff who had been held for questioning.

Mrs. Lykourezou said that "Undoubtedly among the staff there were some who had sneaked the ELAS men in. A number of 'patients' when examined turned out to be fakes. They were bandaged and lay in bed pretending to be ill when the government forces arrived, hoping to escape that way. Bulgarians and Russians were found among them."

Wahlberg returned to the Greek Red Cross hospital Saturday with two trucks of food. The water supply had been disabled by a bullet in the main pipes, and a shortage threatened once more.

Wahlberg returned to the hospital today, taking a surgeon and an assistant.

EUROPE UNREST IS BLAMED ON LACK OF POLICY

Failure of the major powers to agree upon a basic policy for liberated countries is responsible for the present outbreaks in Greece, Belgium, and Italy, Reinhold Niebuhr, professor of Christian Ethics at Union Theological seminary, New York, said yesterday on the University of Chicago Roundtable broadcast.

"In Greece, Belgium, and Italy," he said, "the big powers are tempted to interfere in internal policies, each in its own interest. This lack of policy appears to the people in those countries like a conservative policy, whereas it actually is evidence of no policy."

Also heard on the broadcast were Bernard Pares, professor of history at the University of London, now visiting professor at the University of Toronto, and Antonin Basch, professor at Columbia university.

DECATUR SAILOR AIDS IN BUILDING U.S.D-DAY HARBOR

Army Tug Under Fire of German Guns.

BY JAMES SLOAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 10.—In the first three and a half days of the Normandy invasion last June, Capt. Antonio Marchisello of 605 W. Macon st., Decatur, Ill., then a first mate in the army transportation corps, helped direct operations of an unarmed 86 foot tugboat which lined up 16 of the blockships which were sunk as a breakwater to make possible the landing of supplies from merchant ships.

Telling today how this little vessel helped to build the famous "Mulberry" harbor at Arromanches, Marchisello said:

"While we towed the ships into position, the Germans never let up. They fired everything they had at us, and I guess we got thru safely only because our boat was so small."

Hit by Bomb Fragment.

Once, while his ship was towing into position one of the old merchant ships which were scuttled to provide protection for Mulberry harbor, a German bomber scored a hit on the blockship, and a bomb fragment slashed Marchisello across the left eye. But the Illinoisan kept his craft moving in thru repeated attacks until she reached her scheduled position.

Marchisello's war exploits began in the Southwest Pacific, where the Liberty ship on which he was serving scored a possible hit on an attacking Jap submarine. On his return to America from the Pacific, he spent a short leave with his wife, the former Evelyn Crandall of Decatur, and renewed his acquaintance with his daughter, Suzanne, 4. He also greeted a newcomer, Marilyn, born during his absence.

Practiced Off Scotland.

Marchisello last February joined the civilian division of the army transportation corps as an able seaman. Within a month he was in the United Kingdom and had been promoted to first officer. During the spring he was stationed aboard a United States army tug practicing invasion tactics in waters off Scotland.

Marchisello was made second in command of an invasion tug which began operations on the afternoon of D-day. Thereafter for three weeks, the Decatur sailor's craft was under almost continuous pounding by enemy shore and aerial defenses.

Highly commended for his devotion to duty under fire and during the great storm of June 19, which threatened to wreck the allies' huge pre-fabricated invasion harbors, Marchisello found a promotion to captain awaiting him shortly after his return to England. Now he is assistant superintendent of marine civilian personnel for the United Kingdom and the continent for the army transportation corps.

BELGIAN PATRIOT REVEALS WHY HE FIGHTS PREMIER

Says Government Aids Collaborators.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Dec. 10 (AP).—A former Brussels newspaper reporter who heads the resistance movement in Belgium is challenging the leadership of Hubert Pierlot, prime minister of Belgium, on main issues.

Chief of these is his charge that the government has been ineffective in dealing with collaborators and even is friendly to them.

Forty year old Fernand Demany, who founded and led the front of resistance thru the years of German occupation, eluded the gestapo for four years and was once saved from capture and execution by his 9 year old daughter, said in an interview he does not wish to be prime minister.

"But M. Demany is not Communistic," Mlle. Van Foren, interpreter, whispered while the guards gave interviewers the once over.

Resigns as Minister.

Demany recently resigned as minister without portfolio when demonstrators demanded resignation of the government Pierlot brought from exile in London and clashed with police in a gun battle on the streets.

He outlined these disputes with Pierlot's government.

1. The prime minister did not integrate the resistance forces into the new Belgian army. This young army had been more active in resisting the Germans than any in other occupied countries, Demany said.

2. Many economic collaborators are still at large. Most of those Pierlot's government has arrested have been of little importance.

3. "We should fight in an atmosphere of confidence in our leaders," Demany said. "Instead Pierlot's government has become friendly toward many who opposed our resisting the Germans."

4. Several important collaborators are working for the allies because they have newer equipment given them by the Germans than have the men who refused to collaborate and let their machinery get outdated.

5. The resistance in Belgium opposed any government coming back from exile to take over a country in which resistance members lived and fought. "The resistance we created was often against the wishes of the government in exile," Demany said.

Almost Captured.

Demany created the resistance army in April, 1942, and was forced to hide from the gestapo for editing a tiny mimeographed newspaper "Resistance." "Resistance" first had a circulation of 500, but Demany's present paper, "Front" goes to 50,000 readers.

Three times Demany was almost captured by gestapo agents. A fourth time they picked up his little girl en route from school and tried to make her tell where her daddy was hiding. The little patriot knew, but fearlessly replied, "Messieurs, Demany is in London where you Germans can't get him."

Thru underground arrangements the BBC announced later that he was safe in England. His wife and daughter later joined him in the Belgian underground.

Demany favors a coalition government until the people can decide.

CHINESE BLAST BHAMO IN BURMA WITH SIEGE GUNS

SOUTHEAST ASIA HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, Dec. 10 (AP).—Chinese troops have brought up heavy siege guns and are blasting Bhamo, Burma road stronghold in northern Burma, the Southeast Asia command announced today.

Guns of 105 and 155 millimeters have been brought up thru the jungle to aid in reducing the stronghold on the Irrawaddy 170 miles northeast of Mandalay.

On the Chindwin river front, to the southwest, East African troops were harassing the enemy along the main road between the river port of Kalewa and Yeu, 80 miles east on the Mu river.

Mexico-Panama Highway to Be Finished Next Year

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 10 (AP).—The section of the Pan-American highway from Mexico City to Panama will be inaugurated early in 1945, said G. Haven Ebishot, constructor and engineer, yesterday. Completion of that section is progressing, he said, in spite of the "titanic efforts" necessary in some regions, notably in Costa Rica, where the road crosses mountains at an altitude of 15,000 feet.

LANZA SURVEYS WAR IN ITALY AND EAST FRONT

East Prussia, Poland Are Question Marks.

BY COL. CONRAD H. LANZA.

Fifteen months have elapsed since the allies landed in Salerno in Italy. In this time they have advanced up the peninsula a distance of about 280 miles. This is under two-thirds of a mile a day on an average. The allies are now at the edge of the Po valley, the richest and most important part of Italy.

The main allied effort is being made on the right, or east sector, following the Adriatic coast. It has reached Ravenna. If it can go another 30 miles to Ferrara, the Germans may be forced to evacuate all of the Po valley and retire to Venetia, covering the approaches to the Brenner and other passes across the Alps. This would liberate all of the important areas in Italy including the great industrial and commercial centers. But much more fighting is required before the prize would seem to be in hand.

The only way that the Germans could avoid a withdrawal would be by finding troops to maintain a materially longer line than they hold now across the neck of the Italian peninsula. It is doubtful in view of the attrition losses in west Europe, that Germany could spare more divisions to go to Italy.

The Eastern Front.

The east front is about twice as long as the west and south fronts together. There are at least 50 per cent more German troops here than on the west and south fronts, and possibly 100 per cent more. The Russian strength is not known. Russia is receiving substantial aid from Romania, which under the terms of the armistice engaged to furnish at least 12 divisions to the common cause. Bulgarian and Yugoslavia are furnishing substantial contingents whose strength has not been divulged.

In the north, Russia recently has captured the German strong point on Oesel Island at the north entrance to the Gulf of Riga. The Germans hold the south entrance, and it is not known whether the Russian success has resulted in opening the port of Riga.

Drive Thru Poland?

Opposite East Prussia, and in Poland, there has been no major fighting for some time. There has been much talk about a prospective Russian offensive thru central Poland headed straight for Berlin. There is no available information as to Russia's intentions to undertake that operation.

In Slovakia, a Russian offensive is under way. That is a poor country, but across it are five roads or railroads connecting Poland to Hungary. These are valuable to Germany as they enable her to quickly transfer troops from one country to the other. The Russians have captured the first of these lines, and have four more to take.

Attack on Budapest.

Farther south the Russians and Romanians are jointly engaged in trying to force Hungary out of the war. The main object appears to be to capture Budapest. A direct attack failed. An attack was then undertaken to get around Budapest from the north. This has made good progress.

South of Hungary, all Balkan states, except Yugoslavia, have been evacuated by the Germans. They are now engaged in withdrawing from central Yugoslavia. The south limit of present German occupation is in what used to be Montenegro. The line of retreat runs northwest thru Sarajevo. The rate of retreat has recently been about 50 miles a week. This is not fast. The Germans are opposed thruout Yugoslavia by Marshal Tito's partisans. These have a high nuisance value, as they destroy bridges, attack small groups, destroy stores, and generally cause as much mischief to the Germans as possible.

BOMBERS BLAST NAZI LINES NEAR FAENZA IN ITALY

ROME, Dec. 10 (AP).—Five waves of United States Mitchell bombers rained thousands of fragmentation bombs today on German lines around Faenza, where British 8th army men have fought off counter-attacks seeking to break the ring slowly being forged around the Po highway city.

Hundreds of medium and fighter-bombers pounded enemy lines, hit at barracks on Bologna's outskirts, and again attempted to close the Brenner pass route, thru which a heavy flow of supplies again is rolling from Germany to support Nazi soldiers in Italy.

The Germans used tanks in their assaults upon the 8th army's new Lamone river bridgehead flanking Faenza, strongpoint on the Bologna highway, but all attacks were beaten back, allied headquarters announced. Fighting fluctuated near the village of Celle, two miles west of Faenza, and in the bridgehead sector near San Prospero, a mile and a half southwest of Faenza.

WMC HEAD BACKS 26 TO 37 DRAFT AS WAR JOB AID

Approval of the program announced Saturday for increased drafting of men aged 26 to 37 to help meet the need for thousands of additional workers in war factories was given yesterday by William H. Spencer, regional director of the war man power commission.

He disclosed that new contracts for ammunition amounting to 100 million dollars have been assigned to Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin, and expressed hope that the new draft order will help to procure 25,000 additional workers to fulfill these contracts. He said many men who had been given occupational deferments because they were in war work left their jobs after the drafting of men between 26 and 37 ceased as a general practice.

In a plan to spur the drive for 17,000 more war workers in Chicago three radio programs sponsored by the Peter Hand Brewery company will be dedicated to the campaign this week over W-G-N in coöperation with the office of war information. Broadcasts of "The Crime Files of Flamond" at 9:30 p. m. tomorrow, "Say It with Music" at 6:45 p. m. Thursday, and "Mystery House" at 9:30 p. m. Sunday all will carry the campaign for workers theme.

PLAN TO EASE PAROLE POLICY ON LIFE TERMS

U. S. Court Action May Free State Felons.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Some convicts serving life imprisonment sentences in Illinois prisons may receive early paroles as a result of a study now being made, T. P. Sullivan, director of public safety, revealed yesterday. Only those who have served at least 20 years are eligible, however, the director explained. They could help relieve the man power shortage, it was suggested.

W. C. Jones.

The filing of many habeas corpus petitions in federal courts, climaxed by a decision Saturday by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals giving an Indiana federal District court jurisdiction over an Indiana state prisoner, caused state officials to discuss new policies and plans, Sullivan stated.

Status of 60 Discussed.

"There have been no complaints that our parole board is too lenient," said Sullivan, who has headed the state safety department for the last four years and who has been in the state service under four governors. "If anything, it's to the contrary."

Sullivan said his attention had been called to the status of about 60 convicts at Stateville penitentiary. Each had served at least 20 years, but still had little hope of parole. Prison officials, including Warden Joseph E. Ragen, told Sullivan they believed many of the lifers would be good parole risks—that they would never again commit a crime.

"Lifers are eligible to parole after 20 years, but parole is granted only at the discretion of the board," Sullivan said. "It hasn't been a policy with the board to deny them paroles, but it has been the practice. Some, I am informed, are freed at the end of 20 years."

Each Judged on Merit.

W. C. Jones, chairman of the parole board, said each case is judged on its individual merits. He said he didn't think the board leans backward to avoid criticisms such as were heaped on parole boards under previous governors.

"We are looking into the problem," Sullivan explained. "Gov. Green doesn't want this board to be too severe, any more than he wants it to be too easy. I believe, that with the governor's approval, there will be a revision of the cases of some of the lifers—and possibly others, too."

Sullivan said it was the practice of the parole board to impose the maximum penalty in a majority of cases considered by it, and to vote for the minimum punishment only rarely. Some adjustments might improve prison morale, he declared. He agreed with Warden Ragen that after 20 years in prison a parolee is not likely to return to the follies of his youth.

Konkowski Case Cited.

One case cited yesterday to illustrate parole board action concerned Frank Konkowski, former 26th ward alderman, Democratic ward committeeman, and lawyer, now serving a sentence of one to five years. He was convicted of taking money from men about to take a civil service examination for the police department—and of not returning it when the bribe-givers failed to pass.

Konkowski was given the maximum by the parole board and is not due out until Christmas, 1945. He has served nearly three years but by order of the parole board he must serve five years, less 15 months off for good behavior.

ELECTRIC POWER FROM AIR! IT'S AN REA SCHEME

It'd Fix 'Stupid Profit System,' Too.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—A scheme by the rural electrification administration to draw electric energy out of the atmosphere and, at the same time, "change the present stupid profit system" was described today by Rep. Halleck [R., Ind.]

Rep. Halleck.

Halleck revealed the program in a statement after reading testimony of the senate agriculture committee's investigation of the REA.

He said the testimony showed that the REA paid Thomas Henry Moray of Salt Lake City, Utah, $25 a day to perfect a system of siphoning "radiant energy" from the air. The testimony said Feliz J. Frazer, an investigator for the works progress administration, spent two years "assisting, begging, cajoling, and threatening Moray to develop his radiant energy."

He's Simply "Unfathomable."

Halleck said Franklin P. Wood, an REA engineer, was sent out to see radiant energy in the making and turned in a report which said:

"Moray is unfathomable. He is an unmitigated ass, crackpot, nitwit, religious fanatic, essentially honest, unable to originate or perpetuate a hoax or fraud.

"In some inexplicable way he has, I believe, stumbled on to something that he himself cannot understand, but which, if it is all he thinks it is, will more profoundly affect the human race than any discovery in previous history. He is stubborn beyond reason and believes that it is a revelation from heaven and that in the Lord's own time, which may be any time now, the Lord will tell him how to bring it out."

"New Era" On the Way.

Halleck said Wood spoke of the radiant energy project as one that was a challenge to aid in "changing the present stupid system of individual profit production to one which will usher in a new era." Halleck said Moray was kept on the REA pay roll after Wood had made his report.

"We've seen adagio dancers hired by the government to run our planned economy," Halleck added. "We've hired fan dancers to amuse the frightened citizenry huddled in air raid shelters. We tried to harness the moon with the tidal dams of Passamaquoddy.

"But even to congressmen grown dizzy from following the acrobatics of our burocratic wizards, the REA testimony is almost too much to believe. That agency has spent many thousands on nut house schemes. I am wholeheartedly in favor of farm electrification. But the American farmer deserves better from his government than administration by daft incompetents."

CHINESE RETAKE KWEICHOW TOWN IN COUNTER-PUSH

CHUNGKING, China, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Kweichow railroad town of Hsiasu, 12 miles from the Kwangsi province border, has been recaptured by the Chinese in their current counter-offensive which virtually has cleared Kweichow province of the invaders, the Chinese high command announced today.

The Japanese once penetrated to a point 70 miles within Kweichow in a drive toward Kwelyang, capital of the province, from which they could have driven 300 miles southwest to Kumning or to Chungking.

EACH HOME ASKED TO GIVE SPOONFUL OF GREASE DAILY

One spoonful of grease a day from every Chicago household for use in making ammunition was asked yesterday by Mrs. Walter J. Kelly, chairman of the office of civilian defense grease-tin campaign.

"Grease is more desperately needed than ever before," she said. "Reserve stocks are dwindling as the demand for artillery shells increases. One spoonful a day from every Chicago home would make up our quota deficiency."

Neighborhood meat markets receive grease from housewives and pay four cents and two red ration points a pound. Mrs. Kelly said that the present need for tin cans also is greater than ever.

FIVE AMERICANS PRESENTED WITH NOBEL AWARDS

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—President Roosevelt and King Gustav of Sweden joined today in expressing hope that scientists again would contribute their talents to the benefit of mankind as Nobel prizes were presented in the United States for the first time.

The prizes, usually given in Stockholm by the king, were presented because of war time travel conditions in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel ballroom by the Swedish minister, Wollmar F. Bostroem. Five American citizens and one Dane received awards totaling $120,000.

No Peace Prize Again.

For the sixth year there was no peace prize but Bostroem said he hoped "some one will be found worthy of one next year."

President Roosevelt, in a message, said "here in America we have always believed science should be a servant of the people.

"I am confident that after this war the scientists of all nations will again contribute their talents to a world body of knowledge, useful alike to all people."

The Nobel prizes, established by the late Alfred Bernhard Nobel, Swedish inventor, and first contributed in 1901, approximate $30,000 each, but in two instances today's awards were shared by two men. Recipients of the prizes were:

PHYSICS—Dr. Otto Stern, Carnegie Institute of Technology, the 1943 prize, and Dr. Isidor I. Rabi, Columbia university, New York, the 1944 prize. They worked in the same field, Dr. Stern measuring the magnetic length of the proton and Dr. Rabi developing a method for revealing the magnetic properties of the nucleus of the atom.

Honor Vitamin K Discoverer.

PHYSIOLOGY AND MEDICINE—Dr. Edward A. Doisy, St. Louis university school of medicine, and Dr. Henrik Dam, University of Rochester [N. Y.] school of medicine, shared equally the 1943 prize. Dr. Joseph Erlanger, Washington university, St. Louis, and Dr. Herbert Gasser, director of the Rockefeller institute, shared the 1944 prize.

Dr. Dam discovered vitamin K, which is essential to the blood in the formation of prothrombin and without which the body is unable to heal wounds. Dr. Doisy made vitamin K synthetically.

Dr. Erlanger's and Dr. Gasser's discoveries concern the functions of the single nerve fibers.

Other winners, who were not present, were Johannes V. Jensen, Danish author living in Copenhagen, who won the 1944 literature prize, and Dr. George Hevesy, Hungarian scientist, who won the 1943 chemistry award. Jensen won for his novel "The Long Journey." Hevesy's award was "for his work in the use of isotopes as indicators in studying chemical processes."

Speakers at the forum tonight included Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press; Edgar Kobak, president, Mutual Broadcasting system, and Darryl F. Zanuck, vice president, 20th Century-Fox Film corporation.

MR. CHURCHILL WAS NOT CANDID.

Mr. Churchill's defense of his interventions in Italy and Greece was vigorous but it was not candid. Mr. Roosevelt should be grateful that Mr. Churchill didn't tell why he felt free to interfere in the government of the Mediterranean lands. The real reason is that he was authorized to do so in a deal with Stalin for the division of Europe into spheres of influence, a deal to which Mr. Roosevelt offered no objection at the time it was made.

At first glance, it may seem that Mr. Roosevelt's position today is something like Mr. Wilson's at Versailles when he found his allies deserting the Fourteen Points because they were in conflict with secret treaties for the division of the spoils. The resemblance is only superficial. Some critics say Mr. Wilson knew about the secret treaties and some say he didn't, but, at any rate, he believed that when his Fourteen Points had been accepted by all his allies his terms for a European settlement superseded any private arrangements that contravened them.

Mr. Roosevelt, on the contrary, has long known that his Atlantic Charter has been superseded by the Anglo-Russian deal to divide Europe into spheres of influence. Mr. Roosevelt has probably seen a certified copy of the contract, but even if he hasn't he cannot have failed to observe what Russia has been doing in Poland, the other Baltic countries, and in the Balkans with British approval. Britain is allowing Russia to gobble up what she wants in exchange for Russia's agreement to let Britain dominate the Mediterranean. There has been no secret about that. Everybody knows it.

Upon the Russian aggressions, Mr. Roosevelt has spread his benediction. It is scarcely a fortnight since the state department solemnly announced that the boundaries of Poland are a European question with which we are not concerned. That reversal of everything Mr. Roosevelt has stood for could only have meant that he was willing to let Russia grab her share, whether the people concerned wished to be ruled by Stalin or not. More than that, Mr. Roosevelt, under the Dumbarton Oaks arrangement, had sought to bind this country to send American soldiers at any time they may be needed to keep the Poles under Russian subjection.

As far as Russia is concerned, Mr. Roosevelt has approved the deal. Only when Mr. Churchill sought to assure his country its assigned share of the spoils did the state department spring into action. Why the discrimination? In fact, it is easier to defend what Britain has done in Greece and Italy than to find excuses for the Russian aggressions. After all, Britain is not raising the Union Jack over Rome and Athens and presumably has no intention of incorporating Italy and Greece in the empire. All Britain seems to want in these countries is governments that can be counted upon to accept suggestions from London without too much fussing. In contrast, Russia has raised the soviet flag in her sphere. Stalin is not preserving even the fiction that Estonia, for example, is an independent nation.

Mr. Churchill did not make this defense before the house of commons because, tho he is angry, he is too much the patriot to defend himself at the expense of his country's welfare. Knowing that America has twice saved the British empire from ruin, Mr. Churchill is not going to teach Americans that Britain, when in difficulties, will always agree to something like the Fourteen Points or the Atlantic Charter without meaning to adhere to the principles if they become inconvenient once the danger has passed. Likewise, Mr. Churchill intends to get along with Russia as best he can. He had nothing to gain from stressing the inconsistencies in the Roosevelt diplomacy. He knows that Roosevelt is indebted for the fourth term to Stalin's men in the PAC, but hopes that Mr. Roosevelt's gratitude is only temporary. To have told the commons all he could have told would have cleared Churchill completely, but it might have infuriated Stalin as well as Roosevelt and probably would have driven them even closer together. Mr. Churchill may reasonably fear that if Russia feels certain of American support Stalin may go so far as to upset the deal which put the Mediterranean in Britain's sphere.

Accordingly, Mr. Churchill pretended that he was meddling in Italy and Greece not by contractual right but out of tender regard for the people of those lands. His memoirs will tell a different story.

"TITULAR LEADER."

One thing the Republican party must do to clear away the wreckage left by the recent election is to forget the pretentious nonsense of the "titular" leadership of the party.

The idea that a defeated candidate holds some special position as a spokesman in the interval between campaigns is against all sense and reason. Nevertheless, Mr. Willkie assiduously fostered the fiction four years ago, and Gov. Dewey is attempting to do the same thing now. Soon after his defeat he requested Mr. Brownell to continue as national chairman. Mr. Brownell's qualifications for the post, such as they may be, are in these circumstances immaterial. If he is to continue as chairman the request that he do so properly should come from the national committee, not from Gov. Dewey.

Gov. Dewey is thru. The fact is so plain that it is useless to try to evade it. He wrecked his campaign exactly as Mr. Willkie wrecked his in 1940. Both were me-too candidates, and all that the election returns proved was that the voters, when offered a carbon copy of Mr. Roosevelt, naturally preferred the genuine article.

In view of his conduct, so disastrous to himself and to many other Republican candidates who were forced to run with him, Gov. Dewey merely makes himself ridiculous by pretending to a position of leadership in the party. He defeated himself by betraying the only principles on which the Republican party had a chance to win a majority of the voters—the principles of a pro-American foreign and domestic policy.

The governor of New York had and has no position of his own on foreign affairs nor has his adviser, Mr. Dulles, the Wall street lawyer. They indorsed the Roosevelt foreign policy and it was plain then and has become even plainer since that Mr. Roosevelt has no foreign policy, only ill-founded hopes.

The defeated candidate and his adviser represent only Wall street and the people who want to get the big money out of the peace and who are willing to disregard the welfare of the mass of their fellow citizens to get it. Mr. Dewey did not dare avow this alliance when he was seeking the nomination. His purpose in refusing to state his position in the pre-convention campaign was to make people think that he stood where he had stood when he was an avowed candidate in 1940. The discovery that he had traded American interests to the bankers came too late to save the party.

If the Republican party is to follow the example of the British army, which makes field marshals of discredited generals, it is going to remain just as ineffective as that army.

MacARTHUR'S GENIUS.

Gen. MacArthur's maneuver to take the Japanese defenses on Leyte Island from the rear by landing the 77th division in Ormoc harbor was a characteristically daring and brilliant MacArthur tactical conception. The general always seeks the advantage of surprise, and this time, as so often in the past, he achieved it. He also seeks the short road to his objective, as he has demonstrated in all of his strategy of by-passing and isolating strongly held enemy positions on his way back to the Philippines. While the Japanese forces were deployed against frontal assault, the back door was insecurely held and MacArthur has stepped inside.

The amphibious operation into Ormoc bay and the capture of Ormoc itself leave the Jap defenders in a desperate position. Their forces have been split in two and the one harbor thru which they have brought in supplies and reënforcements is now denied them. MacArthur's task of securing the whole of Leyte and converting it into a strong base for deeper penetration into the Philippines would seem to have been measurably shortened.

Gen. MacArthur's endeavor has consistently been to achieve his victories at a minimum loss of life, and the Ormoc bay landing, effected, as he says, with negligible ground losses, is another instance of this kind of success. His forces still face hard fighting, but with the advantages they now hold the campaign should go more quickly and easily. Once more MacArthur has proved that there may be a greater saving thru daring than thru the cautious procedure to which so many other generals are addicted.

Gen. MacArthur has shown his willingness at all times in this war to put the most modern military conceptions into practice. His movement of an entire army with all of its equipment and supplies over the Owen Stanley mountains in New Guinea to attack the Jap strongholds at Lae and Buna is still unequaled as a massive demonstration of the potentialities of military air transport. His use of parachute troops to outflank and cut off the Jap garrisons in Northeast New Guinea again showed his receptivity to new techniques.

The remarkable thing is that MacArthur has accomplished his results with very limited resources as compared with those allotted our commanders in Europe. He has been compelled to compensate for his deficiencies in man power thru inventiveness and tactical and strategical genius. The European commanders could profitably study his methods. The Italian and German campaigns might be hurried along by use of his flanking and enveloping tactics. He is far and away the greatest general the war has produced in any army. The leadership he provides insures the total erasure of Japan's power.

SUGAR SHORTAGE.

Another triumph of the planners has reduced stocks of sugar now on hand to the lowest level in 10 years. On Oct. 1 there was a total of 465,000 tons in the country. Housewives are familiar with bare shelves when they go to buy sugar. Companies in food industries using sugar have been compelled to curtail production or to shut down. The situation is serious because normally about 16 per cent of the total food energy requirements of the country's population are supplied by sugar.

Sugar has been closely rationed and controled by government since the first days of the war. The present shortage is another instance of burocratic miscalculation and planning off the beam. The food industry war committee, which has studied the problem, finds that there has been an inadequate assignment of ships to bring in raw sugar from producing countries outside the continent and an insufficient production of both cane and beet sugar within the United States.

During 1944 the nation used 750,000 more tons of sugar than had been contemplated under "planning" estimates. The sugar shortage now being felt thruout the land demonstrates that planners don't improve even with experience. They have had three years of war to master a problem that is far from complex and they find themselves farther from the answer than ever. The situation should be remembered the next time the medicine men in Washington advance the thesis that the conduct of the nation's economy can only be trusted to their hands.

Lake Balaton in Hungary, recently engulfed by the Russians, offers an exclusive fish called the foga, much esteemed for eating. It is said to be unique among the finny tribes of the world, but we gather that it has a pikelike appearance. The foga should be a crossword fish, but the puzzle makers have not yet discovered it.

Mineral springs and summer resorts are also among the characteristics of Lake Balaton. Hungarian travel literature speaks of it in ecstasy, thus: "Its water, which is soft and warm, is like a huge opalescent shell, reflecting the most lovely color variations of the sky."

Bonn, university town on the left bank of the Rhine near Cologne, reported badly damaged by bombing, should be of interest to the music-lovers who go trooping to Orchestra hall for the symphony concerts. Beethoven was born there. Under the Hohenzollern regime the University of Bonn became the most aristocratic seat of learning in Germany. Kaiser Wilhelm II. was a student prince there, and his sons followed his example. The leading fraternity at Bonn required pedigrees showing many generations of nobility.

Long ago, before world wars became a habit, we met a prof from Bonn on an American train ride. He was a physicist, but he resembled Henry James, the novelist, with a better tailor. He haunts our memory as the only university prof of our acquaintance who had to have champagne with dining car fodder.

THE LAST PAGE.

Now must I bid a last adieu
To all you rare, sweet, phantom folk
Who into Fancyland withdrew
My humdrum heart, and round it threw
Illusion's lovely cloak?

Must I no more meet you, and you,
Adventure's magic street along—
No more taste mystery's wind and dew,
Or at romance's nod renew
A long forgotten song?

Must I then leave, when Finis stands
Cold footstone to a finished tale,
Those gay forays to foreign strands
You led me on? Those sea-blue lands
To which you bent my sail? . . .

Alas, whene'er I lay a true
And comely-crafted book aside
As I do now, and say "Adieu"
To each loved line, it seems I too
Have doffed a life, and died!

The Duke Gets Medical Advice.

Hon. Linemaster: I'm gettin used to it now from tha laundry and restaurants, but I didn' ever think tha doctors wood get tha war-on fever. I wakes up yesterday feeling like a giraffe with a stiff neck an I calls up Doc. Melendy, an he tells me he cood see me 2 weeks from Tuesday, an I seys as how I cood croak by that time, an he answers me with "it has been done."

After telling him my symtoms he tells me to get a 3 inch tee-bone steak, eat the bone an mail him tha steak. Ennyway I explains I aint in no mood fer kidding an I asks him, shood I take a hot bath an he seys any kind of a bath woodn' do me no harm. He suggests, however, that I get a box of vitamin W pills.

His instructions are to take one pill before bedtime, one after I fall asleep, an another one just before I wake up. Tha final diagnosis is that I've picked up a germ called Puscatoriproboscis, an me not ever having studied Checkslavokya I asks Doc. how do ya spell it an he then asks me if I also got chills an I tell him yes, an he changes tha name to flu.

What I think he's doing all the time is giving me tha polite brush-off on a/c of a little measly 12 bucks which I lost to him when I bet on Dewey. I aint paying it cause he only gave me 3 to 1 an now that its all over I figger he shood of gave me 6 to 1. Whadda ya think his final instructions are before he slams up tha receiver?

Your board has misclassified you. Your classification should be 1-C by reason of your discharge from service. Being a discharged veteran, you are not subject to re-induction except upon the specific authorization of the national director of selective service. It would appear you are free to buy the drilling outfit or seek employment in a war plant or elsewhere.

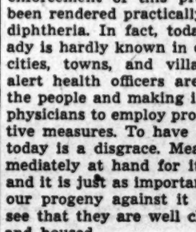
WIPE OUT DIPHTHERIA.

NO one need have diphtheria. Some of us are old enough to remember when—as the "choker"—it was our most dreaded childhood disorder. In those days the death toll was high.



Youngsters fell before its ravages because there was so little to do. We didn't know what caused it and parents and physicians alike would stand wringing their hands in utter helplessness. Thanks to medical research and the output of our scientific laboratories, which have been available, the mothers of today can scarcely appreciate the sinking feeling that filled the minds and hearts of all when this virulent contagion appeared.

With the discovery that certain organisms could produce illness, one particular variety [diphtheria bacillus] was proved guilty of attacking the throat, the nasal passages, and the larynx of its victims. Then came the dramatic revelation that horses could be immunized against the germ and that their serum would contain a neutralizing element to the poison of the invader. This could be injected beneath the skin or into a muscle of the little sufferer. As soon as this plan became general, the mortality rate began to drop rapidly.

We can hardly realize that it was not until 1890 that the first experiment proved the value of antitoxin—a dying child was saved. But even better news was to follow and, for more than a dozen years, we have known how to shield every one against this formerly highly fatal infection. The Schick test will tell whether or not the child is susceptible. If he is, toxin antitoxin or toxoid may be injected, thus protecting against the affliction.

Many a community, thru strict enforcement of this program, has been rendered practically free from diphtheria. In fact, today the malady is hardly known in enlightened cities, towns, and villages where alert health officers are educating the people and making it easier for physicians to employ proper preventive measures. To have the disease today is a disgrace. Means are immediately at hand for its conquest and it is just as important to guard our progeny against it as it is to see that they are well clothed, fed, and housed.

Furthermore, what a relief it is to know that Johnnie and Nancy cannot contract one of the most powerful enemies of childhood. Every medical man understands how to employ the vaccine and reactions are, as a rule, so slight as to be unnoticeable.

But, despite all warnings, should the malady strike, antitoxin must be administered promptly. The ailment can be differentiated from acute tonsilitis because the diphtheria membrane can be seen growing off the tonsil, as well as on it. It is not necessary to wait for a culture because the antidote is relatively harmless.

Immunity can be brought about readily with one or two small doses of toxoid. Three months thereafter, the Schick test is utilized and it will indicate whether or not the youngster is safe. If more of the material is required, it can then be given.

MUSCULAR DISTRESS.

H. T. writes: Does lumbago indicate low vitality?

REPLY.

It would seem so altho the malady may strike those who appear to be fit. Exposure is a factor, particularly if chill is involved. This implies a drop in resistance. The disorder is commonly called "muscular rheumatism."

BLOOD FROM NOSTRILS.

M. M. writes: Lately I have noticed brownish stains on my handkerchief after blowing my nose. What could be wrong?

REPLY.

Small flecks of old blood, probably from the sinuses. If the condition persists, consult a skilled nose specialist.

CHANGE OF LIFE.

Mrs. R. writes: Are dizziness and insomnia present in the menopause?

REPLY.

These symptoms may appear in several conditions, including the change of life. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet.

Alone at Christmas.

Alone at Christmas? We are not alone.
There are these long, impenetrable days

Who bring to Christmas blessed gift of love"?

MARIAN GLEASON.

Absent Minded Sergeant.

It was 5:59½ p. m. and the streamliner, City of San Francisco, was about to pull out when a 250 pound staff sergeant bounced out of it and came sprinting down the North Western station platform toward the gates, knocking people this way and that and shouting at each trainman he passed: "I've forgotten something. Don't let the train go without me!" He plunged thru the gates and into the waiting room where he looked about wildly for a moment, then scooped up a six months' old baby from a bench and sprinted back to the gates. He made it down the platform in nothing flat, yelling this time at each trainman, "Much obliged! Much obliged!" Then, with one magnificent leap, he clambered into the first opening, and the train began to roll.

They'll Never Go Back.

No matter where else they may roam after the war, it is safe to say that no American soldier who has been stationed in Iceland will want to return there to build his postwar dovecote. From a warrior just back after 17 months there [his shoulder patch is blue for the ocean, white for the glacier, red for the volcano at Iceland's heart] we learned that the day does not exist when a man is safe without his parka. The day may start out so warm that a man may go shirtless, but by night there may be fierce cold, a driving wind, and a rain which the wind drives at such a pace that it seems to come horizontally.

The only industries are fishing, sheep raising, dairy farms, and woolen mills [two]. Everything is a monopoly, even the hot springs that spurt from the cold ground, and concessions are rented out. Greenhouses have been erected over many of the hot springs, and in these such delicacies as tomatoes, lettuce, and cucumbers are raised. One man has a banana tree in his. This year it produced 2,600 bananas which he sold for 60 cents apiece. Aside from this gent's bananas, Iceland [called Island—ees'lund in Icelandic] produces no fruit, but every Christmas the government imports apples, again a monopoly.

The Icelanders have bad teeth but a fine command of language. Their own is pure or archaic Danish, but every one who goes past grade school is required to master three others—English, Danish, and German. Pony carts are the principal means of transportation, and many regions are threaded only with pony trails passable neither by cart nor jeep, but by pony-back alone. The Icelanders eat pony meat with a vengeance, but Americans don't take to it very kindly. Anyway, they are supplied with arctic rations in which they get much beef. In summer they can vary this with fresh salmon if they wish to fish for it themselves. To do so, however, they have to rent fishing privileges on a stream.

Lately, since the American government ruled that its soldiers could marry Icelandic girls [prettier than Icelandic men, our informant says], romance has picked up. Until then the Icelanders looked askance at any girl who went out with an American, knowing that his intention could not be permanent.

PLANNED SCARCITY IN SUGAR.

Lebanon, Ind., Dec. 4.—The Christmas candy shortage is due to the New Deal sugar quota system which protects the production of sugar in other parts of the world and holds down production in the United States. We produce only about 27 per cent of the sugar we consume and the mainland sugar stocks on Aug. 31, 1944, amounted to 554,000 tons, raw value, less than a year earlier.

The Bunker committee, a confidential committee selected by the President, prepared a report on sugar and that report has been submitted to the President. This report saddles the responsibility for this sugar shortage on some of the government bureaus, and the report is so devastating that they dare not make it public to the people so they will know what is going on.

While the New Deal continues to raise millions of acres of cotton which has produced a crisis, pays an export subsidy of 25 or 30 cents a bushel on wheat, increases our tobacco acreage 16 per cent, and then turns around and gives 25 per cent of the crop away, we could just as well have planted crops needed in this country, like sugar beets. The production of beet sugar alone this year is at least 600,000 tons below what it would have been had the whole situation been met. The candy shortage was planned that way, and the refusal to make the Bunker report public at this time is politics of the highest order.

RAILROAD PASSES.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 30.—We all know that the government has requested us not to travel unless absolutely necessary, and especially not at the holiday season.

I, of necessity am compelled to travel occasionally and riding the day coaches these days is nothing less than a horrible nightmare, yet I encounter so many persons who, as railroad employes or wives of railroad employes, are traveling on passes. I recently met a woman who got on the train at Elkhart, and traveled on a pass to Toledo "to do some shopping." On another trip, I met two women going to Minneapolis "while their passes were still good." Both their husbands worked for the railroad.

While I fully realize that these passes constitute a part of every railway employe's salary, I think it would be far better to give these employes a raise in salary, especially now that the railroads are making more money than they have in years, and, at least temporarily, eliminate passes.

AMERICA, FASHION CENTER.

Chicago, Dec. 4.—The more I see of new fashions from Paris, the more I'm convinced that America is slated to be the world's fashion center of the future. I don't wish to be unkind, and I think it's admirable that Paris is trying to take up where she left off, but the styles I've seen so far are cumbersome and sometimes even laughable. For example, the hat shown in SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE that resembled an oversize drum!

Maybe I'm just prejudiced, but I lo ? American fashions. M. O. F.

SOUTHERN INDUSTRIALISM.

Waco, Tex., Dec. 4.—In a 6,000 mile business trip thru Texas, I have become aware of tremendous industrial expansion here that will be continued after the war. Why should this industrial development take place in the south?

The answer as I see it by direct observation is that the available working population has an unusual attitude. It does not feel itself dependent, nor is it dependent, upon wage work only. The southern laborer often owns farm land, a small enterprise [grocery, etc.], and has a willingness to barter when money is not plentiful. Since southern economy is primarily agricultural, wages are usually only a supplement to more basic ways of "scratching a living from the ground." When the laborer can't buy soap, he makes his own; when he can't buy food, he grows it; when he can't pay for fuel, he chops it himself.

Hordes of working people in the north have taken the hopeless notion that industrial production is the all-in-all of an economy, and have developed the idea that adjustments in wages or in ownership of industry can work some miracle. The south, on the other hand, has demonstrated that industrial production is but a phase of life and that the worker can find "social security" only thru land.

MORE BOONDOGGLING?

Rockford, Ill., Dec. 5.—The letter from Leon E. Reed printed in last SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE regarding a pamphlet put out by OWI for civilian consumption, entitled, "Eat a Good Breakfast to Start a Good Day," reminds me of having seen in a bus or street car recently a display advertising card of the usual size, which puzzled me greatly. As I recall, all that was printed on the card was "Eat a Better Breakfast," with no name or anything whatever to show what firm, organization, or individual was behind this advertisment.

From the similarity of the ad to the pamphlet described above, it seems likely that this is more OWI boondoggling.

DULLES PUNCHES HOLES IN WORLD PEACE PROGRAM

Finds a Big 'Catch' in Dumbarton Oaks Plan.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—One of the most damaging criticisms of the Dumbarton Oaks scheme for preserving post-war world peace by force has come, it was learned today, from John Foster Dulles, who collaborated with former Secretary of State Hull on the plan as the representative of the Republican candidate for President, Gov. Dewey of New York. Mr. Dulles was slated for secretary of state in the event of the election of Dewey.

John Foster Dulles.

The Dumbarton Oaks provision for the use of force against a nation capable of disturbing world peace would be ineffective, Mr. Dulles said, because the nation could veto the use of the international police force against it by its vote in the proposed security council and would be able to back up its veto with military power far surpassing the international police force.

Mr. Dulles, who accepted the Dumbarton Oaks plan as a "proposal containing great possibilities" but dubbed the force provision "little more than scenery," voiced his criticism in an unreported speech to the Federal Council of Churches.

Analyzes Program.

"Some such scenery may be necessary," Mr. Dulles said, "to gain the support of those who think that peace can be preserved, as wars are won, by military might."

Mr. Dulles pointed out that under the Dumbarton Oaks plan force will be invoked by a majority vote of the security council of 11 nations, the majority always to include the United States, Great Britain, Russia, France, and China. "Each nation's vote, he said, "is wholly discretionary and will be dictated primarily by national considerations.

"Each of the nations so far participating in the plans for world organization," said Mr. Dulles, "has accepted the right of the security council to invoke force, but on the assumption that, thru its representative, it will have a string on its use. In the case of the great powers, that veo power will be reinforced by national military establishments which will far surpass any peace quotas which will be made available to the world organization. Other prospective member states will also seek immunity from possible arbitrary action by the council and they may get it.

Immobilizes Quotas.

"If they do not get it directly, in the form of a veto power in the council, they may get it by side understandings with some major power acting as their protector. Also, even as now planned, there must be at least one concurring vote in the council by a small state and five others will cast a vote which, while not controling, will be morally very potent.

"The cumulative result of all of this will largely immobilize the force quotas. Possibly their potentiality, on paper, will deter some minor disturbances. However, their use presupposes a political unanimity of the great powers which had rarely occurred and which, if it prevails, will itself assure peace."

The vote of the council members was made discretionary, Mr. Dulles explained, because of the inability of the Dumbarton Oaks negotiators to define "aggression," the modern technique of which takes the form of internal penetration, the method employed by Theodore Roosevelt "to get control of the Panama Canal Zone, and since then others have perfected it."

OPA SUITS SEEK TO SUSPEND 4 GAS DEALERS

The office of price administration has asked suspension of four gasoline dealers from business until the end of the war in actions filed with Hearing Commissioner John R. Allen. Hearings are set for Dec. 18 on charges that the dealers handled counterfeit gasoline coupons. Those named were William Sturges, operator of a service station at 5847 Augusta blvd., accused of using eight counterfeit inventory coupons to get 800 gallons of gasoline; Orrin E. Barber, operator of a station at Sibley blvd. and Burnham av., Calumet City, 10 inventory coupons and 349 A-12 coupons for 2,047 gallons; and the Perfect Power corporation and the G. J. Tire Sales, both of 1 Plummer av., Calumet City, 424 A-12s for which 1,272 gallons were received.

SENATOR ASKS: DOES F. D. R. WANT FREE ECONOMY?

Questions Choice of Stettinius Aids.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10. — Warning that the American principle of free economy under a free government is under attack, Sen. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.] today demanded that the senate ascertain whether President Roosevelt's reorganization of the state department means abandonment of that principle.

Sen. O'Mahoney.

O'Mahoney, a leader of the senate revolt which halted the effort to railroad thru the senate confirmation of four Roosevelt state department nominations, made public a letter he wrote to Chairman Connally [D., Tex.] of the senate foreign relations committee, in which the demand was contained.

O'Mahoney's letter said the American principle is summarized in the Atlantic charter and Mr. Roosevelt's early stand against trade practices that restrict the free flow of foreign commerce.

Is There a New Policy?

This was the policy of former Secretary of State Hull, O'Mahoney said, but, the letter continued:

"In considering the recent nominations to the state department, it is supremely important, it seems to me, for the senate to know whether or not the reorganization of that department now in progress involves any possibility of a change or modification of that policy. . . .

"It is a matter of common knowledge that the American principle of a free economy under a free government is under attack from two sides. There is constant pressure from those who participated in shaping the pre-war international cartel [international trade monopoly] structure for resumption of those practices after peace has been won. . . . Advocates of government cartels are moving from the other side to substitute a complete government controled economy."

Nominees Under Fire.

O'Mahoney's letter fanned the fire that is raging under Connally as Connally prepares to open public hearings Tuesday on the qualifications of Mr. Roosevelt's nominees, said by senators to have been chosen by Harry Hopkins.

The storm center is William L. Clayton, altho there has also been some hilarious criticism of Archibald MacLeish, poet, New Deal prophet and librarian of congress, who like Clayton has been nominated for one of the assistant secretary of state posts.

Clayton, now surplus property administrator, is an international cotton broker whose views, the senators insist, are unknown to them. No formal accusations have been made against him. O'Mahoney and the others who halted confirmation merely say they want to know where he stands as to either government or private cartels.

Reorganization of the state department began when Secretary Stettinius succeeded Secretary Hull. Nominations of Clayton and MacLeish came to the committee shortly afterward with those of Nelson Rockefeller for assistant secretary and Joseph C. Grew for undersecretary.

VOTE TO CLOSE N. Y. MEAT SHOPS IN OPA DISPUTE

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—An estimated 3,500 New York City meat dealers, shouting down all protests, voted at a turbulent mass meeting today to take a "holiday" beginning Christmas day and continuing "until office of price administration regulations are adjusted."

Albert T. Wendel, president of the New York State Association of Retail Meat Dealers, estimated 10,000 retail stores, or 80 per cent of those in Greater New York, would be closed.

A spokesman for the regional OPA office said "every possible effort" would be made to avert a city-wide closing of stores.

The butchers said in a resolution they were being "subjected to an unworkable and unfair regulation" and that the "entire ceiling structure was promulgated on the basis of live steers being 13 to 14 cents per pound and at the present time are 18 cents." Retail prices have not been changed.

REAL YULE SIGN! SNOW COVERED TREES ARRIVE

Five cars of snow covered, green Christmas trees rolled into the Canal st. team tracks yesterday consigned to Gust Relias, 22 South Water market, who is known as Chicago's Christmas tree king. The cars, first of 25 which Relias expects in this week, came from Montana, where dealers say the best trees are grown. Children eyed the fresh green of the snow mantled trees in open cars as the final indication that Christmas is just around the corner. Relias gave good weather in Montana as a factor in an expected plentiful supply. Other trees come from Canada and Maine.

[ADVERTISMENT]
NOTE—From time to time, in this paper, there will appear an article which we hope will be of interest to our fellow Americans. This is number seventy-one of a series.
SCHENLEY DISTILLERS CORP., NEW YORK

From "Down Under"

From somewhere in the Southwest Pacific comes one of the most interesting letters from a lad who, too, has post-war plans. He addressed his letter to Schenley Distillers Corporation and says that, while he, along with millions of other American boys, is at present "employed", he is giving serious consideration to his persona' post-war plans, "if everything goes as well as they have been going."

We have received a number of such letters from Australia, North Africa, "somewhere in Italy", "somewhere in France" and from way up in Iceland, but there is something unusual in this latest letter and we are going to quote a couple of paragraphs verbatim. Here they are:

"I can sum up my post-war aims very simply. I seek no special privileges, no public bounties, no paeans of praise. All I ask is that I be provided the opportunity to work in peace, to produce the many things that the pursuit of war necessarily denies us. All I want is the chance to earn a decent American living for myself and for the family I undertook to start—until the needs of our country demanded a temporary halt. I do not consider myself a special case. I quite well realize that many of my buddies are in exactly the same position as I. If I could, I would speak for them as well, but I am of no importance in that respect.

"I am twenty-five years of age, married and have a child of two. I realize that you have the problem of your own employees at present in the service, and I would be the last person in the world to wish to compete with them for their jobs."

This lad then hopes that he may have an interview "when I get my job done over here."

He closes his letter, "May I hear from you in this respect? I feel very grateful for your consideration and I pray and hope that I will be around to read your answer—if you answer."

Our answer? Well, that just doesn't belong here. But you can wager that with our answer goes our prayer that he be "around" when it arrives.

URGES LINKING CANAL ROAD TO LOOP VIA 23D ST.

Elevated Connection Is Engineer's Idea.

BY ROBERT HOWARD.

Utilization of 23d st. for an elevated super-highway by which traffic from the proposed Illinois and Michigan canal expressway could reach the downtown district was suggested yesterday by H. A. Musham, a naval architect and consulting engineer who has studied Chicago transportation problems nearly 20 years.

H. A. Musham.

Engineers long have agreed that the abandoned canal right of way would be an ideal route southwestward to connect with the airport and with major highways into downstate Illinois. Gov. Green last week ordered that it be given top priority for a survey.

Still to be agreed upon, however, is the problem of how the superhighway would reach the loop from the canal's terminal at the Chicago river at S. Ashland av., just north of Archer av. Several proposals have been made.

Extra Mileage to Loop.

Musham's suggestion would add to the mileage necessary to reach the loop, since traffic would go eastward to cross the Illinois Central tracks into Burnham park over the viaduct at 23d st. Columbus and Leif Erickson drives then would furnish connections with Grant park, the loop's eastern doorway. For motorists not wishing to go to the park, ramps would permit turns northward for Clark st., State st., and Michigan av.

"My plan is for an elevated superhighway on steel supports," Musham said. "I don't agree that express roads should be depressed in a cut thru a wide right-of-way. That takes too much money for land purchases, and it means there will always be trouble in draining in the low spots under the cross streets.

"There are two major advantages in favor of a 23d st. route. Once east of Canal st., there are only two railroad lines to cross. Trackage there is at its most narrow point south of the loop. The railroad tracks are comparatively low, and it wouldn't be much of an engineering problem to bridge them.

Cost Would Be Less.

"Another thing, 23d st. is mostly old and dilapidated. It wouldn't cost much to condemn property to build interchange ramps. It wouldn't mean the destruction of property values in a better part of the city. And the cost would be much less than for any other route.

"The canal would make an ideal parkway and the whole thing could be built without great expense, all the way from the airport connection at Cicero av., in two years."

Musham proposed that a high level roadway be used all the way from Ashland av., passing over the produce terminal beside the bridge there.

Proposes Part Doubledecked.

From 23d and Canal sts., Musham's route would require that Archer av. be doubledecked, with the elevated super-highway over the present surface traffic lanes, to west of Halsted st. There it would swing northward at about Quarry st., and follow either Eleanor st. or Hillock st. until it passed over the Ashland av. bridge onto the canal banks.

Musham, in business here since 1926, previously had long experience as an army officer and in shipyards and ordnance plants. In 1919 and 1920, with the rank of major, he was an army member of the joint board of survey on marine transportation in New York City.

City officials advocate that the super-highway leave the canal route a few blocks east of Western av., cross Archer just below Ashland, and continue on a block-wide right of way to Lowe av., east of Halsted st. There, blueprints call for a depressed highway northward on the west side of the river until it reaches the territory immediately west of the loop.

City Plans Highway North.

Also in the city plans, for later construction, is a crosstown highway north from the canal near California av. to help meet the needs of the north Chicago areas.

Musham said an upper deck elevated super-highway could be built on Ashland av. northward, or if railroad air rights could be acquired, that the east bank of the river could be skirted to an extension of Wacker rd.

'Driverless' 5½ Ton Truck Gives Police Big Surprise

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 10 (AP).—Police gaped as a 5½ ton truck glided smoothly thru traffic, no driver in sight. A squad car took out in a chase. Drawing abreast of the vehicle, officers found a small-for-his-age 12 year old in the cab. "Been driving since I was 7," he reported. The officers returned him, after a lecture, to his broken down bike, the borrowed truck to its worried owner.

FINDS WIFE, 30, MOTHER OF 4, DEAD IN GARAGE

Mrs. Linnea Bauer, 30, of 7535 Foster av., Norwood Park township, was found dead in the Bauer automobile in the garage at the rear of the home yesterday by her husband, Carl, a war worker. The garage doors were closed. The gasoline tank was empty.

Bauer told Sgt. Eugene Miller of the Morton Grove highway police that his wife left the house at 2:30 a. m. Sunday after they quarreled, and that he thought she had gone to her mother's.

Mrs. Bauer leaves four children.

'SANITY' LEAGUE CAN'T FIGURE M'LEISH OUT!

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—When it comes to poetry, the League for Sanity in Poetry wishes Archibald MacLeish would stick to being librarian of congress.

The organization's bulletin, made public today, listed MacLeish among poets who "discard" rhyme, meter, clarity, music, consecutiveness of thought—"indeed, discard thought itself."

The league's New York representative, Albert Ralph Korn, confessed he never had been able to understand even the title of MacLeish's book, "Nobodaddy," published in 1925.

He is equally baffled by MacLeish's dictum that "a poem should not mean but be." "I don't think these people understand it themselves," Korn asserted.

Korn and the other protesting poets formed the league because they felt their own work was being drowned out by "verse that at best is freakish or eccentric, and at worst appears to be a product of dementia praecox."

Chicago Debutantes Looking Forward to Yuletide Parties

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE mails are filled with invitations to debutante parties during the Christmas holidays, but missing from among them are the cards that were expected from Mr. and Mrs. Allan M. Clement and Mr. and Mrs. Franklin G. Clement to a reception for the Franklin Clements' elder daughter, Joan. They had planned a tea at the Woman's Athletic club on Dec. 28, but the party was canceled when practically all of the debutante's close friends decided against parties this winter. Instead Miss Clement probably will bow at a tea in Lake Forest early next summer.

One of the first charitable events in which the debutantes are being asked to participate is the Travelers Aid benefit dinner-dance, "A Cafe in Lisbon," next Saturday night at the Drake hotel. Four of them, Miss Joan Johnson and Miss Ariel Tatman, who are arriving from school tomorrow; Miss Ann Cornelisen, who arrives Wednesday, and Miss Carla Hawley, as well as subdebutante Carolyn Kuehnle will model in a "carnevale des chapeaux" during the evening. Their bonnets are titled respectively, Intrigue, Masquerade, Amor Amor, Mlle. Fifi, and Dark Eyes.

Mrs. Harry Vested, a former president of the woman's board, and Mr. Vested are coming from Pennsylvania for the party and will stay with Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Kochs.

The John Kohlers of Kohler, Wis., will also be here and will visit the William Popes.

Other Debutante Notes.

A round of gay parties will keep the debutantes and their younger sisters constantly "on the go" during the holidays. Among the latest of these to be planned is a small dinner dance which Mrs. Charles C. Haffner Jr. and Mrs. Edward K. Welles will give on Dec. 23 in the Haffners' home for their children, Miss Clarissa Haffner and Scott and E. Kenneth Welles Jr. Miss Haffner, who decided not to make a debut this year, is expected home Saturday from Vassar college. Kenneth Welles is enrolled in the navy V-12 unit at New Haven, Conn., and his younger brother attends Exeter. Maj. Gen. Haffner will miss the festivities as he is stationed with the army in the European theater of war.

Since there will be no formal debut for Miss Priscilla Morrill, who arrives from Pasadena, Cal., with her mother, Mrs. Fenton Morrill, on Dec. 23, her grandparents, the Howard Fentons, will introduce her to their friends at an informal "at home" on New Year's afternoon in Lake Forest. Miss Morrill attended the Lake Forest Day school and the Anoakie-Flintridge school for girls and now is taking a business course. Her mother, who is secretary of the emergency war housing committee of Pasadena and Altadena, will be here with her until the middle of January.

Mrs. Harold A. Bachmann of Lincoln Park West and Mr. and Mrs. Querin Dorschel of the Edgewater Beach apartments have cards out for a tea on Dec. 21 for their daughters, Miss Joan Bachmann and Miss Martha and Miss Carita Corbett. The party will be given from 3 to 6 p. m. at the Woman's Athletic club.

Miss Bachmann attends the Girls' Latin school, and the Corbett sisters are students at St. Mary of the Woods college.

Romantic News.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Bremner Peck entertained at a small tea Saturday in their home in Winnetka to announce the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Mercer, to Lt. [j. g.] Evans Speer of the navy medical corps, son of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Speer of Laguna Beach, Cal., formerly of Evanston.

Miss Peck is a graduate of Bennett Junior college and has been doing volunteer work in both the navy hospital at Great Lakes and Evanston hospital. Her fiance was graduated from Harvard university and the Northwestern university school of medicine. He will report for orders to the marine corps base in San Diego, Cal., early in January, following the completion of his internship at Evanston hospital.

Only their two families will be present when Miss Mary Louise Cobb and Lt. Austin Huntington Kiplinger of the naval reserve are married at 4:30 p. m. today in the chapel of the Winnetka Congregational church. Later the guests will return to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Evelyn Pierpont Cobb of Winnetka, to drink a toast to the two young people before they leave for Washington, D. C., to visit Lt. Kiplinger's family.

Miss Elizabeth Cobb will be her sister's maid of honor, and Willard M. Kiplinger, who is here from Washington with Mrs. Kiplinger, will be his son's best man. Also present will be Lt. Kiplinger's mother, Mrs. Irene Austin Kiplinger of Toledo, O., and his sister, Mrs. John Wilson of Madison, Wis. Lt. Kiplinger, who recently returned from 10 and one-half months in the Pacific, will take his bride to Florida when he reports for duty there next week-end.

On Today's Calendar.

Mrs. J. Wilson McAllister, vice president of the Garden Club of Illinois, will tell members of the Evanston Junior league how to make Christmas decorations at the league's luncheon meeting at 12:30 p. m. today at the Orrington hotel in Evanston.

Mrs. Joseph T. Cochran will open her Woodlawn av. home today for a book review tea for members and friends of La Rabida-Jackson Park sanitarium. The annual membership tea will be given in the sanitarium on Wednesday with Mrs. Harry R. Kurrie in charge.

Mrs. Ralph Johnson will be hostess at the traditional Christmas meeting of the Kenwood Social Service club at 2 p. m. today in her home in E. 68th st.

Chicago Woman's Club to Hear Mrs. Brazelton

Mrs. Ethel M. Colson Brazelton, continuing her series of news reviews and book talks for the Chicago Woman's club, will speak at 11 a. m. on Wednesday on "Rounding Out the Year." The meeting will be in Curtiss hall. A. J. Cronin's novel, "The Green Years," is the book she will discuss. Cornelia Stabler will give her holiday reading, "American Christmases," in the afternoon. Mrs. Henry Barrett Chamberlin will preside. Members and their guests will have tea in the north lounge of the club suite.

8,000 Throng First Night of Fund Benefit

BY HARRIET PRIBBLE.

Chicago opened a large and glittering holiday package Saturday night at the Coliseum—the Chicago Horse show, which turned out to have a good share of the tinseled sparkle one might expect to find under the Christmas tree. The particular Santa Clauses were the directors of the Chicago Horse Show association, who will turn over proceeds of the nine day event to the Community and War Fund of Metropolitan Chicago. Using Saturday's crowd of 8,000 spectators as a rule-of-thumb measure, the committee jubilantly estimated that the show will help materially to put the city over its quota of $12,980,000 when the final campaign meeting of the fund is held Friday.

Just what the crowd expected after a lapse of several years since Chicago's last indoor horse show was hard to tell, but one thing was certain—Saturday's opening offered something for everybody. Many of the spectators adhered to the opening night tradition of long gowns and dinner jackets, and altho the committee lived up to its word and provided a 70 degree temperature around the ring, fur wraps were welcomed for strolling thru the gusty lobby, enlarged for the show and freshly painted blue and red. At the other extreme, a few of the guests took the title of the event literally and came in jodhpurs and riding boots.

For local color there were quaint four-in-hand coaches, straight from an old English Christmas card; the pink coated riding master, the chrysanthemum decked judges' stand in the center of the ring; and the harness buggies, one of them guided by a feminine driver in velvet, mink, and orchids. Gene Autrey, cowboy star of the show, missed the opening performance when his plane was grounded in New Mexico, but his Tennessee walking horse, Champion, appeared with the trainer.

Belles of a pre-show dinner party for which the directors took over the Balinese room of the Blackstone were teen-aged Jori Butler, whose father, Paul Butler, is president of the association, and Lita Sullivan. Their dinner partners were seven cadets from Culver Military academy, including Jori's brother, Frank.

Mrs. Butler's black dinner gown was collared and cuffed in silver bugle beads. At the same table were Mrs. Jere Patterson, who will leave for Washington, D. C., on Dec. 22 to spend Christmas with Pvt. Patterson; Col. Chester Fordney of the marines; Lt. and Mrs. Eugene Scott, here from Ottumwa, Ia.; Miss Evelyn Gardner, in a short electric blue gown, and Lt. Comdr. Henry W. Meers.

Mrs. Louis F. Swift, nothing daunted by having carried pails of water all day long after the well on the Swifts' farm stopped working, appeared in a small tangerine crepe dinner dress to dine with Mr. Swift, the L. F. Caufields, Mrs. John Stevens, the Theodore Mohlmans, Miss Helen Wegg, and Lt. Phil Rush and Lt. Daniel Miller, who were here from Fort Riley, Kas.

Among the many others who saw the opening show were Miss Jane Leonard and her fiance, Robert Goes, and his sister, Miss Dorothy Goes; Mrs. John Q. Adams Jr. and her cousin, Miss Barbara Adams; Mr. and Mrs. Whipple Jacobs, the Edward J. Kellys, the John F. Cuneos, the Walter D. Monroes, and their daughter, Joan; Col. and Mrs. Leon Mandel, who were with the junior Byron F. Harveys; the Philip K. Wrigleys, Mr. and Mrs. H. Leslie Atlass, and Miss Julie Beich. The show will run thru next Sunday.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Finished.

I know you won't believe it
[And say there's not a one],
But once I knew a man who
Had everything done.

No doubt you will dispute it
Or say you never heard
Of any one so perfect,
And not believe a word.

You'll surely call it nonsense—
Dreamed up in my head—
The man whose tasks were finished?
That man—that man was dead!

The Bustle Age.

Webster's dictionary defines "bustle" as a noun, "a pad or cushion worn underneath a woman's skirt," and as a verb "to move quickly." Does that mean the girls of the old days got around faster than the girls of today?

SMITTEE.

Silent Night.

From Inez Geisbush comes an excerpt from a letter written by Gregory Kelly, a coast guardsman somewhere in the Pacific.

"Tonight, after early chow, I went out in a patrol boat and had a chance to see the whole harbor. In the twilight the hills and mountains were weirdly beautiful; the sunset was glorious and the palms silhouetted against an amber dusk were something to remember for a long time. A glorious moon came up and made a silvery path across the bay, so no matter which way you turned there was a scene of beauty.

"On the way home we enjoyed the walk in the soft moonlight back to the barracks. We had had feather showers all afternoon and the earth was fragrantly damp. The sky was magnificent—the stars here always seem so close and the clouds individually yours. It all seems to be just your particular bit of sky, like the ceiling in your own room, or the dome of a cathedral you love.

"And then, suddenly, as we walked along, the strains of 'Silent Night' came across the water, played on one of those native stringed instruments. I tell you, it almost threw me. Had it been firecrackers heralding the 4th of July, I couldn't have been more surprised. Celebrating Christmas in this climate will really be something."

Feminine Firsts.

The first two women to be elected to the Hall of Fame [in 1905] were Mary Lyon, first president of Mount Holyoke and founder of the college, and Emma Willard, who helped found [among other seminaries] a school at Athens, Greece. Tho at one time she made an 8,000 mile lecture tour thru the western and southern states, she is best remembered as the author of "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep." Both women began to teach in their early teens. . . . Maria Mitchell, the astronomer, worked on the first American nautical almanac. She also is in the Hall of Fame, the first woman elected to honorary membership in the American Academy of Arts and Science. . . . Nancy Astor, first woman member of the British parliament has announced she is retiring from politics.

Koussevitzky and Orchestra Spin Pure Gold

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Blizzard or no blizzard, even the orchestra pit of the Civic Opera house was filled with people determined to hear the second and last of the Boston Symphony orchestra's concerts under the direction of Serge Koussevitzky. And at its end some of us were ruefully computing railroad fare and the cost of a Boston winter for the sake of hearing music like that once a week rather than once in six or seven seasons.

The most extraordinary thing about such music is that you can listen with your mind or your heart and arrive at the same bedazzled conclusion. For the Boston orchestra is as technically superb as it is emotionally dynamic. It doesn't matter in the least whether you are affected by the means or the results, and that is about as close as you can come, in performance, to the universality of great music.

There were people there yesterday who spoke with a kind of bemused incredulity of Koussevitzky's mastery of nuance, pace, and color, of the patrician economy of style that reaps its reward in cumulative climax, of the ability to see a score as a whole and project not merely a sequence of alluring sounds, but music of character and significance. These people spoke of the double basses, Koussevitzky's own instrument, which reach their glory in his orchestra. They talked of the pinpoint pizzicati, the lovely, languorous legato, the sense of undertow, the glorious tone of solo instruments, each so stellar in performance that all melt into a tapestry of throbbing beauty.

Yesterday Mr. Koussevitzky chose the French and Russian music for which he and orchestra long have been famous, and in every note they told us why. Here were scores in the standard repertory, too often despoiled by hackneyed or perfunctory performance. And what freshness, what spirit, what luster that orchestra not so much gave to those scores as it seemed to absorb from them! The Berlioz "Roman Carnival" crackled with brilliance and ended on an upthrust of exhilarating audacity. Debussy's "Faun" was a murmurous reverie for winds and strings that seemed not so much to be played as to hover in the air.

So exquisite is the equilibrium of that orchestra that with scarcely more than one finger Mr. Koussevitzky set the winds in liquid shimmer for Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloé," music that at its peak foams in long, low billows over sands of golden tone. And so acute is its sensitivity to line, color, and mood that the Tschaikowsky Fifth regained its dignity, its tenderness, its shadowed gaiety, and the great jubilant song of its finale, played with a climactic fury that thrust open the floodgates, releasing for the first time in the entire work the symphony's turbulent torrent of conflicting emotions. The one trouble with such music is that it supports you in orchestral style to which you would like, too often in vain, to become accustomed.

Since the godlike Shan-Kar deserted his disciples, there is no one quite like Devi Dja in the dance. The tiny Balinese, stranded on our grateful shores by the war, returned to the concert stage last night at the Civic theater.

Suggesting a miniature goddess from some ancient temple, who looks and moves like the softest brown satin, Devi Dja sums up the technique of her subtle art in the dance of animal exorcism, that curvetting, swaying, crouching art of Bali, with the flexible fingers and the arching throat as much its trademark as the tiny dot of caste between the kohl lined, liquid eyes. Almost like the unique Shan-Kar himself, she can make you believe in the mood, as well as the technique, of performance, from the mystic contemplation of Buddha to the artful coquetry of Javanese lore.

No one else in the troupe touches the hem of her garment, but the little orchestra of percussions and wailing strings is faithful, Devi Wani is beautiful, Devi Mimah is well trained and Devi Tinah, the baby of the troupe, now looks like a plump little wrestler who could smile in a double hammerlock.

Young Pianist Makes Bow on 19th Birthday

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

Mildred Freeman, a young Chicago pianist, gave her debut recital on her 19th birthday at the Civic theater yesterday afternoon, before a good sized audience of well wishers undeterred by the hazards of Chicago transportation in a blizzard.

Miss Freeman is obviously a good and careful student. She has nimble fingers tho not yet very firm ones, and she has a well directed musical sense, tho she is frequently so cautious in its employment that some well intentioned effects remain on her side of the footlights instead of carrying out to the audience with the requisite emphasis. Her tone is good except in climactic moments; then it lacks the power which would place the softer inflections in their proper proportion.

Three intermezzi by Riccardo Pick-Mangiagalli, a contemporary Italian composer, were tastefully set forth, tho their interest lay more in their keyboard patterns than in any particular degree of musical eloquence. "Velocity," by Mathias, is a useful study perhaps, but somewhat pallid on the concert platform, and rather ineptly titled for this peformance, since Miss Freeman's idea of speed hardly conforms to contemporary opinion on the subject. Respighi's "Notturno" suited the performer's best abilities very well, and Ravel's "Toccata" was fluent if hardly brilliant. The program began with the Bach-Stradal Organ Concerto and Weber's Sonata No. 1 in C major, and ended with a Chopin group.

The Trapp Family played ancient instruments and sang before another good sized audience in Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon, with emphasis on music related to the Christmas season. The Baroness von Trapp described a Christmas celebration in their native Austria, and that the audience might be sent home in proper holiday spirit, the planned encores were sung before the Christmas carols, and "Silent Night, Holy Night" ended the program with the lighting of the Christmas tree.

Film Mixes War with Sarongs of South Seas

"RAINBOW ISLAND."

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

According to the war correspondents things are pretty grim on South Pacific isles just now, but not according to the latest Hollywood report, "Rainbow Island," which portrays what happens to three members of the merchant marine who are shipwrecked, take over a Jap plane, and then make a forced landing on a tropical isle.

It's quite an isle, with Dorothy Lamour as one of the more prominent residents, carnivorous vegetation, native girls who dance the hula at the drop of a merchant mariner's cap, a lusty queen, medicine men, and a strong popular belief in certain native gods. Dorothy is the daughter of an American medico, one of those Maughamlike figures who wander sympathetically thru South Sea fiction, and she has gone native to the extent of wearing a sarong. [Surprised?]

But blood will tell and, altho Dorothy is betrothed to one of the queen's henchmen, when her majesty decides to put the three marooneers on the chopping block Dorothy's Yankee wit detects a resemblance between one of the boys, Eddie Bracken, and the foremost native deity, Momo. She tips off the queen and thereafter Eddie becomes a second Emperor Jones, with supernatural overtones.

It's not as pleasant a position as you might think, for Eddie has amorous reactions to the native girls, and it keeps his pals, Gil Lamb and Barry Sullivan, on the resourceful qui vive to explain the god's embarrassingly mortal behavior. The queen takes care of that, however, by decreeing that, being a god, Eddie doesn't require food, tho it's plentiful, including fried chicken, on the island.

While Eddie and Gil are going thru various high jinks Barry is making more romantic use of his time, having not only won Dorothy's heart but also aroused cardiac flutterings in a native maiden, which is risky business. All told, the boys decide it's time to take off and begin cleaning the spark plugs of their plane. But Dorothy's native betrothed, fascinated with these supreme products of western civilization, steals them for his queen, who forthwith has them mounted in a necklace which pleases her so much she even wears it to bed. What follows is plenty, but the boys do get off, with Dorothy and her papa occupying the guest seats in the plane.

It's all reasonably funny, spaced with some good gags, and the extra expense of technicolor was easily saved in costumes, the general effect being that of Oak st. beach on a hot Sunday.

Thru the Looking Glass

It's perfectly true that women are always eager to own and to use lovely cosmetics. But it's not quite true that you can select creams and lotions rather haphazardly and expect women to regard them as the perfect gift.

The more a woman likes cosmetics the more likely she is to know rather a great deal about them—and certainly to have strong likes and dislikes. She may like just one thing in one line or she may prefer one line above all others. Presenting her with creams is a risky business unless you know her tastes.

A bit of detective work may reveal them, in which case you can select liquefying cleansing cream, if that's to her taste, instead of the heavier kind, or a foundation that's exactly what she chooses to use. Above all, you can be certain that the brand name the preparations bear is one she approves. Barring the possibility of finding out what her preferences are, you'd better choose carefully and stick to items in a line that are rather specialized.

Hand cream, for example, or hand lotion of almost any brand is acceptable to all women. But our honest advice is that when you select lipsticks, face powders, eye creams, night creams, or foundations you'd be wise to be very sure of her habitual choices in such things. If you know what she uses your job is easy.

ELEANOR NANGLE.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 10.—Howard Hawks, who's going great guns with "To Have and Have Not," has two pictures all ready to produce in London, and Twentieth is trying to make a deal to send him over for them. One is "The Moss Rose," an old-fashioned story; the other, a psychological Jekyll and Hyde yarn called "Dreadful Hollow." Scripts are all ready to shoot, and both have English backgrounds. Hawks is a guy who believes in preparedness. . . . Since Cecil De Mille decided against "The Flame," he might do a story about only two people, one male and one female. I hope not, 'cause Papa Cecil does so well with those great big crowds. That's his dish of tea. . . . He says, 'I didn't know how many people liked me till this AFRA fight. It's made me mighty humble hearing that Barbara Stanwyck, Ronald Colman, Bette Davis, and Robert Montgomery won't go on the air if I'm thrown off." I believe he could add Jean Hersholt and Frank Morgan to that list. Fighting for his rights is nothing new for De Mille. In his office there hangs a big yellow flag with a black serpent, and underneath, "Don't tread on me." It's a replica of the American colonists' flag. Virginia used it when she broke away from England.

He's Ready for Anything.

William Demarest received a pistol from Winfield Sheehan. So on location Gary Cooper's teaching him to shoot. That came in handy when Demarest woke up at the crack of dawn and heard voices outside his house. He got up, looked out, and there was a great big guy trying to get thru his front gate. He grabbed his pistol, ran downstairs, opened the front door, and said, "Stick 'em up, fellow!" The fellow turned out to be a husky merchant seaman, a little fuzzy, who'd gotten lost in the hills. So what? Demarest ended up cooking breakfast for him. . . . Joan Fontaine tells it on herself. When she was in training for nurses' aid, she was in the psychopathic ward of a hospital here. A resident nurse said to a passing physician, "Do you know who that girl is in there? That's Joan Fontaine." He said, "Dear, dear! How long has she thought so?"

Welcome on Mat for Emily.

Emily Kimbrough again has followed her heart to Hollywood. She's lecturing all over the place. She has two subjects, "An Amateur Goes to Hollywood" and "Confessions of a Scapegoat." Emily's latest book, "How Dear to My Heart" is about her childhood in Indiana. She wanted to call it "Q, Little Time," but her publisher said "Heart" must be in there. I asked her when she and Cornelia Otis Skinner would write another. She said as soon as Cornelia got her own "Family Album" out of the way. By May's end, Emily will have covered the United States of America, and at such a profit. . . . Gloria De Haven's dad, Carter, is dialog director for Lee Tracy's picture "I'll Tell the World." . . . Romance is hotter than hot between Carlie Russell and Martha Zeekers. . . . Leo Carrillo and Lee Shubert are dickering for Leo to appear in a musical in New York about earlier California days. . . . Lou Costello, who's afraid to ride a horse, bought some to race. Then his daughter, Carol Lou, thought they belonged to her. When she heard Flying Gloria was going to run, she told her father she'd take time off from school and go to the races. Lou said, "And what would the sisters be thinking about that?" She replied, "O, I'll take the nuns along."

A Bit of This and That.

Johnny Weissmuller hopes to go hunting in Wyoming, and Frank Sinatra has promised to meet him there. . . . It's Adele Jergen and Ross Hunter now. . . . Judy Canova's deal with Columbia is hot but not signed. . . . Capt. Thomas H. Towers writes from overseas that his pals were so touched by a recent article concerning Lauren Bacall and the cigaret shortage, they were afraid she might go mad. The boys put together and sent their K-ration smokes to stave off any fits of madness little pussy-willow face might suffer. Lt. Roy B. Meyers has sent this with his: "It's tough on me, too. I've considered giving up smoking, but I'll never turn down a lady in distress." He was in the first glider landing at Cherbourg. Arnold Dreer of Philadelphia wrote: "I'll kick in. Hasn't she ever heard of Bull Durham? I'm learning to roll my own, so can she." Lt. James Powell of Alabama: "She can have my last pack, and hope she doesn't set her streaked hair on fire or get those jagged teeth too deep in a cigaret. Yours for less suffering on the home front."

Women Will Review Job Opportunities in Transportation

The first in a series of meetings called by the women's executive committee of the Office of Public Instruction to review job opportunities will be held at 12:15 p. m. on Wednesday in the Merchants and Manufacturers club rooms. The session, which is to be preceded by luncheon, will be devoted to study of qualifications and opportunities in the transportation field.

A detailed survey of every job held by girls and women in air lines, motor, railroad, and steamship companies was made in 1941 by women from 102 transportation companies. The committee's intention at Wednesday's meeting is to have the 1941 report revised to include all additional information developed with the war's progress, Mrs. Anne W. Zinser, chairman, explained.

St. Vincent Society Spends $164,862 for Charity in Chicago

The sum of $164,862 was spent for charity during the last year by the Society of St. Vincent De Paul, it was reported yesterday at the annual meeting of the society in the Palmer House when the society's work was reviewed. Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch greeted representatives from 190 Roman Catholic parishes where conferences of the society are organized.

Twelve hundred fifteen families in the archdiocese were aided, and a total of 3,271 individuals. William J. Ford, president of the archdiocesan society, told of plans for the celebration next year of the centenary of the founding of the society. A demonstration is scheduled on the lake front.

The society was founded in Paris by eight students. The Chicago society was founded in 1858.

Herpetologist Perkins Takes Over Park Zoo

Did you ever meet a herpetologist? R. Marlin Perkins, the new director at Lincoln park zoo, is one. He knows, understands, and even likes reptiles.

He started collecting snakes as a boy in Carthage, Mo., where his father was a circuit judge. His pets made it impossible to keep a maid. And Perkins got into trouble with his landlady at college, too, over a King snake which disappeared from his room.

"But snakes are interesting," he insists. "If people could take a lesson from them and learn to relax as they do, we wouldn't hear about nervous breakdowns."

The new director was curator of reptiles at the St. Louis, Mo., zoo and later director of the zoo at Buffalo, N. Y. before coming to Chicago several months ago as assistant director. He took over his duties yesterday, and with the retiring director, Floyd S. Young, who has had almost 22 years of association with tigers and other beasts, made a tour of the buildings.

Perkins hopes to add to the reptile collection as soon as shipments are again coming into the country. Post-war plans, he says, are indefinite but expansion of the zoo is expected. He said Chicagoans are unique in that they visit the zoo more in the winter months than in summer. He estimated 100,000 toured the building last Sunday.

The new director is the author of a book, "Animal Faces," which contains 95 pictures of animals "as individuals." He says his association with animals has convinced him that they really think and many can understand what is said to them. He has only been injured once in his career and that was when an African Gaboon viper bit him. His recovery was so noteworthy that it has been written up in Raymond Ditmars' book, "Snakes of the World."

The Florida grapefruit crop suffered more damage from the recent hurricane than other citrus fruit crops, for heavier fruit is more vulnerable to high winds. Fewer Florida grapefruit are coming to market; the supply is adequate, not generous.

Army purchases of fresh grapefruit amount to 40 per cent of the crop left by the hurricane. Most of this fruit will be canned and shipped to our fighters as drinkable vitamin C.

Buy grapefruit for heaviness, not size alone. The heavier, the juicier.

When you serve grapefruit halves, prepare them with less waste by cutting around each section along membrane and skin. If you run the grapefruit knife all around the fruit you loosen the sections, but leave much of the meat and juice next to the skin.

Try broiling grapefruit on chilly mornings. Cold fruit may make you shiver more, but warm grapefruit is almost as comforting as a flannel robe! Broiled grapefruit is an adaptable dish, too, and serves equally well as appetizer or dinner dessert.

To broil grapefruit, cut out core, then loosen sections by cutting around each with a knife. Sprinkle each half with 1 tablespoon sugar [or use an equal amount of honey] and dot in several places with bits of margarine. A dash of cinnamon and nutmeg may be added if you like. Broil three or four inches from the heating unit for about 10 minutes and serve.

Sections of grapefruit may be sauteed in margarine and served as an accompaniment to meats. Or they may be browned in meat drippings. In either case you may like to add a sprinkle of brown sugar as the fruit is being heated.

There are other pleasant ways of eating grapefruit hot. Omit the margarine sometime and broil the fruit with a slice of bacon on top. Or fry pork sausage until about half cooked, break into pieces, and finish cooking atop the grapefruit, under the broiler.

Cold grapefruit and chilly juice are fine for summer, but I'm in favor of more hot grapefruit for winter weather.

Mrs. Ed D., Chicago — If your hands perspire when you are sewing on delicate fabrics, bathe them in warm water and alcohol [or alcohol substitute]. I have done this often, and my hands don't soil delicate silks, chiffons, etc.

Mrs. Fred A., Evansville, Ind.—When I dry my clothes in the kitchen on stormy days I have my line hung as close to the ceiling as I can manage. Heat rises and the clothes dry a lot faster.

Mothers Will Welcome Gifts for New Baby

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Do you want to give a gift to a baby this Christmas? If it's a fairly new baby your gift should really be to its mother—something she will be able to use, something practical as well as attractive.

There are lots of charming and not too expensive things, which you will discover when you make your visit to your favorite store. And if you're inexperienced, never having had anything to do with babies, or if you've forgotten because yours are years and years past their bassinette days, there usually is a trained nurse in attendance who can give you good advice for your purchases. At least I have found this to be so.

Among the useful things are the following:

Hand-loomed and bound, or knitted and fringed, wool squares or shawls to hold the baby in, put over him in his bassinette, or to tuck over and around him after he is dressed for outdoors, are practical as well as pretty.

Sweaters and booties, knitted in soft white, blue, or pink, are useful and come in models that fit beautifully.

Babies aren't dressed up much these days, but a small silk jacket lined or even interlined usually is needed over a real dress for occasions—or the same sort of thing in a full length kimono wrapper.

Crib blankets and quilts are shown in a wide variety of colors and designs.

Invaluable is a "fitted" basket or tray, holding everything needed for the baby's bath: oil, cream, powder, soap, safety pins, etc.

Other suggestions include a bonnet or cap, several cotton flannel "receiving squares," several little knitted wrappers or nightgowns, a carriage robe, and the like.

Dainty Tablecloth

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

A small, square, crocheted tablecloth created in a filet pattern has a rose and butterfly motif which is dainty and graceful. This effective design also may be used for a table centerpiece. Fine, white cotton is the ideal medium in which to execute this handsome needlework piece.

For instructions in crocheting the square tablecloth, No. 936, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth av., New York 1, N. Y.

Yes, Men Like Jewelry, but No Gaudy Item

BY REA SEEGER.

Contrary to opinions expressed by some, men do like jewelry, when it's unmistakably masculine, wearable, and unostentatious. This includes rings of wide and effective designs with crests or monograms, or even the jewel studded massive styles holding such fabulous stones as star rubies, cat's-eye, or great chunks of carnelian or lapis.

More functional items are cuff-links, the real or simulated pearl dress suit sets of studs and cuff links, and the every day cuff links made in either gold or silver. There are all kinds of semi-precious jeweled cuff links of virtually every color available, thus making any color contrast or blend easier with ties, pocket handkerchief, or suit itself.

Cigaret cases seldom fail to click with an exacting gentleman, and whether you send one in gold, silver, precious platinum, or even gold plate, each can be individualized with a replica of a personal signature engraved on the lid, or even a tiny sketch of some hobby. If the metal cigaret cases are beyond your cash limit, buy the fine pigskin and swank ostrich skin leathers and the dress wallets or cases of silk with or without gold or silver decorative corners.

Key chains, with a monogrammed disc, belt buckles, likewise monogrammed, and all the gadgets to hang on the end of a watch chain will be found in the Christmas showings in jewelry stores. Automatic lighters are available, but they take a princely sum to buy. The time honored sets of pen and pencil in gold or silver are other good gifts.

Apron Fashions

Mother and daughter may have pinafores to match with the use of patterns 3681 and 3680. They are identical, with rickrack and ruffling trim, and heart pockets. Only the size range is different. The other pattern makes a trifle of an apron to toss over your frock when you prepare snacks, or to give away as a shower gift. Style No. 3681 is designed for sizes 6 to 14. Size 8 requires 2⅝ yards of 35-inch fabric with 3 yards of rickrack. Style No. 3680 is designed for sizes 10 to 40. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 35-inch fabric with 3¾ yards of rickrack. Style No. 3862 is designed for one size requiring ¾ yard of 35-inch fabric. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The winter fashion book, on sale at Tribune Public Service offices, is 15 cents, 18 cents if ordered by mail with a pattern.

ANSWERS TO SATURDAY'S QUIZ.

Q. 1—As South you hold:
♠Q 10 4 ♥6 5 ♦7 6 3 ♣A K 6 3 2
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
3 diamonds	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Two spades. You have a fairly good hand but not good enough to guarantee game. The temptation to jump to three spades in order to avoid giving a mere preference should be resisted. Partner should realize you have a fairly good hand when you were willing to increase the contract. If he wishes to test you out he should try three spades which you will gladly carry to four.

Q. 2—As South you hold:
♠9 ♥7 5 3 ♦J 7 5 ♣A J 10 7 5 3
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
3 diamonds	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. Since you are not the opening bidder the naming of a new suit does not force you, and surely you have no desire to go on. You should be pleased at having bailed out of spades into diamonds.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
♠A 10 7 5 ♥J 10 4 ♦Q 9 6 3 ♣Q 7
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	2 hearts	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three no trump. Partner is coaxing you to go game despite your mild response, he must therefore have a very good hand. You have more than you might have had and should accept the invitation. Since your values are well distributed and you have but three trumps you should try no trump. Partner can persist with hearts if he chooses.

Q. 4—As South you hold:
♠A K 7 6 4 ♥K J ♦4 2 ♣J 9 3 2
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three hearts. Game going prospects are bright because you have the equal of an opening bid, facing partner's opening bid. Your minor suit holding precludes a no trump try, and it would be pointless to rebid spades which partner might not like. Your trump support is adequate for a rebid suit.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
♠K 10 9 7 5 ♥J 10 4 ♦6 4 3 2 ♣K

The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 diamond	Double	Pass	1 spade
Pass	2 spades	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three spades, or with a conservative partner possibly four spades. This hand is much better than it would appear from the honor trick count. All your cards are important ones and are bound to fit. Partner is probably short in diamonds, and besides he has offered to take eight tricks without knowing whether you had anything, which you most decidedly have.

Q. 6—Opponent opens with one heart and you hold:
♠A Q 10 9 7 4 ♥5 ♦A K 9 2 ♣K 5
What do you bid?

A.—Double. This is preferable to a jump overcall of two spades which is the alternate call. This is a flexible hand which need not necessarily play at spades. If partner has length in diamonds and is short in spades, game may be available in the minor. Of course you intend to make a vigorous bid in spades on the next round.

Q. 7—As South you hold:
♠5 ♥A J 9 7 4 ♦A 9 7 6 ♣K Q 5
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 spade	Double	?

What do you bid?

A.—Redouble. This is the proper procedure for showing strength when the opponent is trying to frighten your partner, even tho you do not care for spades. If left to play at 1 spade redoubled partner should be able to make it for a game. The point is the enemy is now bagged and you must not let them out. You are ready to double two of anything they bid.

Q. 8—Partner opens with one club and you hold:
♠K Q 5 ♥A J 9 ♦A J 7 6 ♣Q 9 3
What is your response?

A.—Three no trump. This is the best bid available, because in one call it gives a precise description of your hand both as to honor strength and type. Partner will then be able to estimate whether or not there is anything further in the hand. If you make a temporary response of one diamond, it will be very difficult for you to judge later how far you may proceed with safety.

INSTALMENT XXV.

OVERHEARD.

Rip Morris was kneeling beside the prostrate cowboy in chaps. He looked up and called to the others. "Quit yapping, boys, and come here. They got Chuck Holloway. He's dead."

"Dead!" Sholte looked down at the man lying on the ground. "When did they kill him? Far as I could see neither of them fired a shot."

"That's right," Uhlmann agreed. "Unless it was before I got outa the hotel."

"It couldn't of been before that," Packard objected. "I saw Chuck with his rifle raised to fire. But Pete is right. Neither of these fellows fooled away any time shooting at us. They went straight for their horses and lit out. If that's so, one of us . . ."

The mine owner did not finish the sentence. He looked 'round on a group of startled faces.

Rip Morris put into words the thought that was in the minds of all of them. "He was standing off to the right. I don't see how any of us could have done it—unless some one got jumpy and took him for a friend of Webb."

"Must have been that," Hawkins agreed. "Fess up, fellow, whoever it was. We'll have to stand by you."

Each denied his guilt, some profanely and some with corroborative explanation, but all explicitly and with vigor.

"Just up and shot himself, seems like," the man murmured.

Morris raised another question. "Did Chuck have any enemies?"

Uhlman stared at Rip a long time, while the meaning of the inquiry seeped into his dull mind. "Holy Mike, you don't think one of us—on purpose——"

"Maybe it wasn't one of us," Morris suggested. "Some one could of slipped out from a house on the other side of the plaza and plugged him."

"Or Ranger, from the window of his room," Packard said with acrid spite. "He was hiding Webb. Why wouldn't he help him make a getaway?"

"Might of," Sholte agreed. "But that won't go down so good with the public. I don't reckon we better hang it on him."

"That's right." Packard came to swift decision. "Webb did it. He had me covered with his gun when I called you fellows into the house. It was in his hand when he ran out to the plaza. When he saw Chuck in his way he cut down and let him have it. That's how it was, boys. I saw it. Who else did?"

"I did," Uhlmann assented promptly. "Just before he got on his horse. You saw him, too, Pete."

Sholte showed his teeth in an ugly grin. "Sure I saw him."

"Well, that's settled," Packard concluded. "Webb has killed another man."

"Not quite settled." The words came crisp and clear from a speaker standing back of the mine owner. "If Bob Webb was carrying a gun, he did not have it out when he ran to the hitch rack. I was watching from the window."

Packard slewed his head around and glared at John Ranger. "So it's you. Butting in again. If you're so sure Webb didn't kill this boy maybe you know who did."

"My daughter was standing beside me at the window," Ranger said. "She can testify I didn't fire a gun, and both of us can swear that Webb didn't."

"That goes with me, Mr. Ranger," Hawkins answered. "If you were standing at the window, perhaps you can tell us who did shoot this boy."

"No, I can't, tho I saw him fall. Several guns were fired about that time within a second or two."

"It may go with you, Hawkins, but not with me," Packard cried vindictively. "Ranger was in cahoots with these scoundrels. He has played in with him ever since he met the killer in the canon. Why wouldn't he lie for him now?"

Sholte nodded vigorously in assent. "Right, Jug. I dunno what his game is, but he has taken a great shine to the jailbird."

"I like his nerve, myself," Hawkins replied. "Jug hates him for some reason. That's his privilege. And I can understand why Pete doesn't like him. But why should the rest of us get all het up to bump off the fellow or send him back to Yuma? I've lived in the brush enough myself to favor any one on the dodge rather than the ones hunting him."

"Is that why you were pumping lead at Webb a couple of minutes ago?" snapped Sholte.

"You got me there, Pete," Hawkins admitted. "I reckon I was some carried away by the Fourth of July you boys were pulling off."

"We'd better get poor Chuck into the Legal Tender and notify the sheriff," Morris said.

"Carry him in, and somebody go for the sheriff," Packard ordered. He turned bitterly to Ranger. "Don't think you're going to get away with this. You aided and abetted a criminal. First you hid him, then you prevented me from getting him arrested."

"If you can prove it." Ranger smiled blandly at the mine owner.

John turned on his heel and walked back into the hotel. His daughter was waiting for him in his room.

"Well?" she asked.

"I don't think either of them was hurt," he replied. "One poor boy who rode for Uhlmann was killed. Nobody seems to know who shot him. Probably somebody mistook him for Webb. Jug Packard was fixing to tie it to Bob when I showed up and rather spoiled his plan."

"The papers will be full of this," Sandra said. "You'd better see Mr. Davis again and make sure the Star gets the story right. Jug Packard will try to make it seem that Bob killed this boy."

"You're right," her father agreed. "Bob is the dog with a bad name."

"It's no use," Sandra declared. "If he gets out of this he'll just get into another mixup, and by this time everybody in the territory is on the lookout for him."

Ranger knew this was true. Yet he sympathized with the cause driving Webb to what looked like reckless folly. "You can't blame him for trying to clear his name. If he had just lit out after the jail break the stigma on his name never would have been cleared up."

"You think now it will?" the girl asked eagerly.

"Yes. We've got an investigation moving now. But I can't promise he'll be alive when we spring our evidence on Packard, and I don't know that what we dig up will be enough to convict Jug."

"If Bob Webb isn't alive it will do him a lot of good to show he has been the victim of a conspiracy," Sandra said bitterly. "And as for the villain who sent him to prison—a lot he'll care what people think, if he escapes the law."

John put a hand gently on her shoulder. "Keep a stiff upper lip, honey," he said cheerfully. "This will work out right yet."

Clothing Need of 3 Elderly Persons Told

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

We feel sure our readers will aid Mr. and Mrs. B., an elderly couple. Both are ill and must attend clinics regularly. They are receiving old age pensions, but the amount is sufficient only for food and shelter. It is not possible for them to purchase clothing; they need warm apparel badly. Mrs. B. wears size 54 and Mr. B., who is 5 feet 11 inches tall, wears size 40.

This couple, who have been living in furnished rooms for many years, have now rented unfurnished rooms and need many household items, including linens and bedding, floor covering, curtains, a small gas range, and a dresser. Because of their physical condition, the warm bedding is imperative. The address is on the near west side.

A case worker has asked our assistance for another elderly person, Mr. G. Some time ago he was robbed of his clothing, and his old age pension is not sufficient to replace it. The agency cannot supply such items and would like to obtain a suit, size 40, and a pair of shoes, size 9½. The address is on the south side.

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—The National Hockey league's futility title remained undecided tonight after the Chicago Blackhawks and New York Rangers, last and next to last in the standings, played to a 1 to 1 tie before 14,124. The draw left the Rangers with a two point margin over Chicago.

Few Dull Moments.

Both teams showed more promise than performance in a game that had its exciting moments and a few very dull ones. Chicago scored its goal late in the first period and New York equaled it midway thru the second, but the final period probably produced as many scoring threats as the first two combined.

The Rangers put plenty of effort into attacking but an effective Chicago defense, plus their own habit of shooting the puck around too long before firing at the net, prevailed.

Purpur Scores for Hawks.

Fido Purpur accounted for the Blackhawk tally on a two man break from a Ranger gang play. Ott Heller was alone on defense and Russ Brayshaw and Cully Dahlstrom raced past him, then sent the puck across to Purpur, who easily beat Goalie Ken McAuley.

A neat pass-out by Walter Atanas set up the New York goal after Joe Shack had given him the puck behind the cage. Atanas slid it out to the corner of the goal crease and a quick back hander by Ab Demarco put it into the net.

WINGS BEAT BRUINS

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 10 (AP).—The Detroit Red Wings with the Bruneteau brothers, Modere and Eddie, accounting for four goals, defeated the Boston Bruins tonight for the fourth time this season, 7 to 6, in a National Hockey league game before a crowd of 12,929.

Unfinished Business.

Some folks, I'm told, when they've been approached
To help on the Red Cross war drive
Have hesitantly, but definitely
Let the fact sort of come alive
That they feel they have rather done their part
On the drives that have gone before,
And right now were—well, too busy
To be able to do any more.

Granted they've all done a marvelous job,
And that these are for all crowded days;
But into the mind comes a picture
Thru a dim and a shadowy haze
Of boys off there on those foreign shores
Still carrying grimly on.
Maybe THEY feel that they've done their share, too,
In those terrible months just gone.

Maybe they feel that THEY, as well,
Would like to be "busy" back here
With the routine tasks of every day life
And with home fires burning so near;
Maybe they feel that the time has come
When others should take THEIR place,
Well, if they do, there's no hint of it
In each grim and resolute face.

No matter how much we've done up to now,
There's a whole lot more to do,
Not till the victory bells ring out
Can we even begin to be thru;
Yes, whatever we've done, it's not half enough
For those fellows across the foam,
Our duty's not done till the very last one
Of those brave lads has started for HOME!
—Jazbo of Old Dubuque.

BY EDWARD PRELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec 10.—The New York Giants today settled beyond all doubt any question of Green Bay's opponent for the 1944 championship of the National Football league. Opportunists every minute of the way, they thrashed the Washington Redskins, 31 to 0, in one of the most lopsided games in the series before 35,540, all that Griffith stadium could hold.

Victims of their own mistakes, the Redskins were behind by 14 points after five minutes of the first quarter. Then they continued making so many errors that the final tally showed the great Sammy Baugh had fumbled twice and thrown five passes into enemy hands. A sixth New York interception came on a pass tossed by Frankie Filchock, Baugh's shadow.

Beat Eagles by Half Game.

In winning their seventh sectional championship since the East-West play-off was inaugurated in 1933, the Giants beat out the Philadelphia Eagles by half a game. The Giants won eight games, lost one, and tied one. Their loss was to the Eagles. Philadelphia, which whipped the Cleveland Rams today, finished with seven victories, one loss, and two draws. It was the Bears' 28 to 7 victory over the Eagles two weeks ago which actually paved the road to the Giants' success today. Next Sunday they will meet the Packers in the Polo grounds for the title.

One of today's spectators was Curly Lambeau, coach of the Packers.

Herber Hurls Three Scoring Passes.

Lambeau saw his one time passing wizard, Arnie Herber, throw three touchdown passes, two of them early in the first quarter. Herber threw the ball six times. His three completions all were for touchdowns. The first one came in 3:50 of the first quarter on the fourth play after Frank Cope had recovered Baugh's first fumble. Arnie tossed it from the 28 yard line. Ward Cuff, the old Marquette star, captured it on the 11 and ran for the score without being touched. Ken Strong kicked goal for a 7 to 0 lead.

Baugh Again Drops Ball.

Strong, who spent much of his time kicking off—he had six, the game's total, then booted the ball over the goal. On the first down Baugh again dropped the ball and Vic Carroll, who once played with the Redskins, recovered for the Giants on the 21.

Cuff drove hard thru the Washington right side for 11. After Bill Paschal, who was hurt later in the game, bounced thru for 2, Herber pitched the ball to Frank Liebel. The lanky end caught it on the 2, whirled away from Andy Farkas, and fell over for a touchdown in 5:22. Strong's kick made it 14 to 0.

Libel Halts Redskins' Advance.

Early in the third quarter the Redskins reached the Giants' 36 on a 50 yard march which was suddenly interrupted when Libel speared Baugh's pass on his 39 and returned to midfield. Again the Redskins started down field and this time reached New York's 43, where they were stopped for the fifth successive time when the Giants took possession on downs.

New York got close enough to try a field goal, but Cuff missed from the 43. Cuff brought Baugh's punt back 14 yards to his 28. Howie Livingston, who had replaced Paschal,

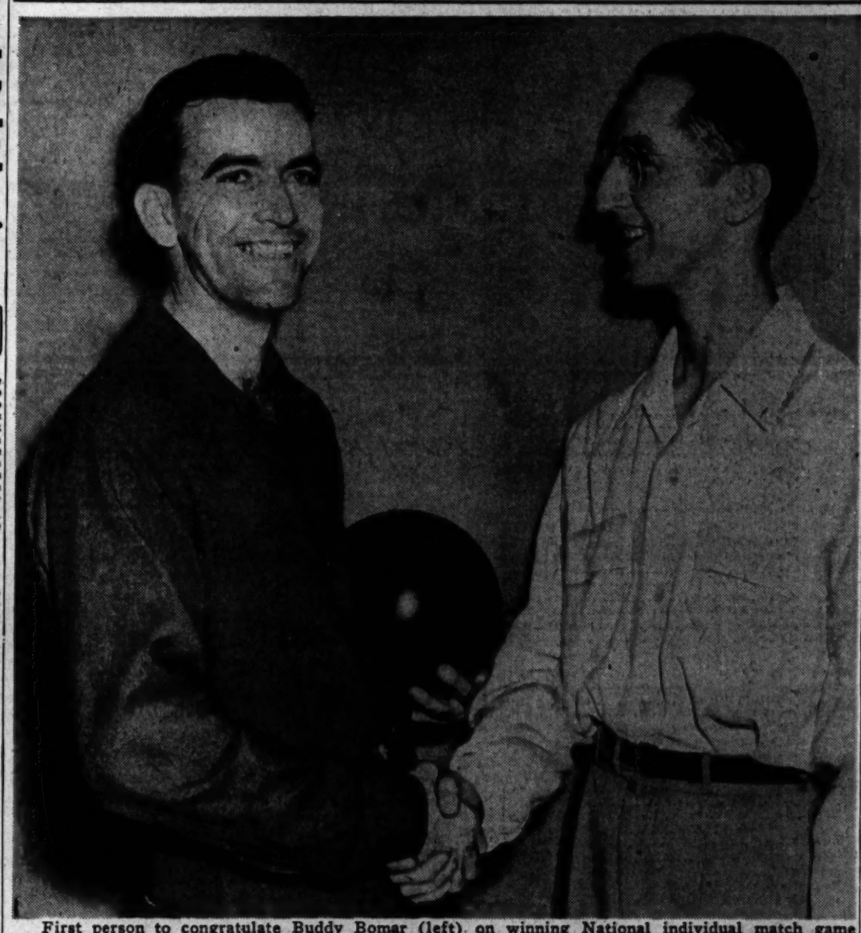
OLD CHAMPION CONGRATULATES NEW



First person to congratulate Buddy Bomar (left) on winning National individual match game bowling championship last night is Paul Krumske, a fellow Chicagoan and the man whom he succeeds as champion. RANDOLPH FIELD WINS, 20-7, FROM 4TH AIR FORCE

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 10 (AP).—The strength of undefeated Randolph Field overpowered the aerial trickery of the 4th Air Force Flyers of March field today, giving the Ramblers a 20 to 7 victory. It was March field's first defeat of the season.

The Ramblers first moved in the first quarter when Dudley intercepted Jimmy Nelson's pass to Woody Strode on the Flyers' 40 and went to the 17. Seven plays later Elmer Madarik cut thru left tackle and went over. Causey kicked the extra point.

In the second period Jacobs of the Flyers passed to Gene Meeks who ran for a touchdown. The play was good for 61 yards. Ernie Smith converted to tie the game 7 to 7.

In the last minutes of the first half a long heave from Layden to Dudley put the ball on the March field 8. The Flyers intercepted a pass but fumbled on the 3. Freeman recovered and Ken Holley then crashed thru center to break the tie. The kick for point failed and the half time score was 13 to 7. A 20 yard pass from Dudley to John Goodyear in the fourth gave the Flyers their final touchdown.

All-America League Names Its Executives

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—The new All-America conference today ratified a five year contract engaging Lt. Comdr. Jim Crowley as commissioner of the new professional football league. Crowley will be unable to take over the office until he completes his assignment in the navy.

Christy Walsh of Los Angeles was appointed to serve as vice president in charge of public relations for the period of the war; Mrs. Eleanor Gehrig of New York was chosen secretary, and Sam Cordovano of Buffalo treasurer.

Ray Miller, Cleveland; A. J. Morabito, San Francisco, and John L. Keeshin, Chicago, were appointed to draw up a constitution and by-laws, with Miller also being named legal counsel.

Today's session ended a two day meeting of the conference, which yesterday awarded its eighth franchise to Miami. Other cities in the league are Chicago, Cleveland, Baltimore, Buffalo, New York, Los Angeles, and San Francisco.

Baseball Men Elect Landis to Hall of Fame

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—The late Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball's high commissioner from 1921 until his death last Nov. 25, was unanimously elected to membership in baseball's hall of fame in Cooperstown, N. Y. today, at a special meeting of the hall of fame committee.

Stephen C. Clark, president of the National Baseball museum in Cooperstown, headed the committee whose other members were Connie Mack, president of the Philadelphia Athletics; Edward G. Barrow, president of the New York Yankees; Robert Quinn, president of the Boston Braves; Melville Webb of the Boston Globe, and Sid Mercer of the New York Journal-American.

A suitable memorial is planned for Cooperstown as a symbol of the Landis influence on baseball.

Ferrier Wins Oakland Open with 277 Total

Oakland, Cal., Dec. 10 (AP).—Sgt. Jim Ferrier of Camp Roberts, Cal., carded a final round 68 today to win the Oakland Open with a 72 hole total of 277.

In second position as the field teed off for the last 18 over Sequoyah course, the soldier caught up and passed the leader, Harold McSpaden, Philadelphia, at the ninth hole with a 33 to the latter's one over par 36. He breezed in from there, racing on the impetus of a par 35 nine to hold the advantage and stave off a challenge by Ky Laffoon, Chicago, who finished with a 278 and second place.

Byrd Takes Fourth Place.

Sam Byrd of Detroit made a stirring bid for top honors, but he settled for fourth place, one stroke back of McSpaden.

Sgt. Ferrier's victory was a popular one with a gallery of more than a thousand fans. He was beaten by Byron Nelson, Toledo, O., by a stroke in the San Francisco Open last week, after leading that event from the 36th thru the 69th holes. He picked up $1,600 worth of war bonds for his winning effort today.

Nelson started as the tournament choice, but developed a streak of inaccurate putting that knocked him back into a final sixth place tie with Craig Wood, Open champion. They posted 283.

Pieper Wins Amateur Honors.

Geo. Schneiter, Salt Lake City, slipped in ahead of Nelson and Wood with a 282. Tied at 285 were Sam Snead, Hot Springs, Va., Jimmy Hines, Amsterdam, N. Y., and Leonard Dodson, Kansas City, Mo.

Amateur leader in the field was the California Open and Amateur title holder, Ernie Pieper Jr., San Jose, Cal., who finished with 286.

Two time former Unted States Open Champion Ralph Guldahl, starting with 222 for 54 holes, struggled thru his final round and failed to turn in a card. Trying to come back, he has failed to land in the money on the first three tournaments of the current winter Open tournament tour.

NATION'S FANCY HORSES THRILL CHICAGO CROWD

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

Scores of the fanciest equines in the nation pranced thru the second day of Chicago's gala horse show in matinee and evening performances yesterday in the old Coliseum, which last was host to society's horse devotees almost half a century ago.

Despite an all-day snowfall, the attendance for the two sessions was estimated at 7,000, the number that turned out for the opening of a nine day run Saturday night. And those who braved the elements witnessed one of the finest shows the city ever has entertained.

Hileaha Tops Performers.

The performance of Si Jayne's beautiful chestnut gelding, Hileaha, ridden by Mrs. Jayne, highlighted yesterday's program. Hileaha, winner of the first event on Saturday's card, for jumpers over the Oak Park course, went on to another triumph in the first event last night, for jumpers over the Treasure Island course. This victory came after a disqualification during the matinee, when he left the prescribed course in competition with a handy hunter group.

An additional highlight to yesterday's activities was the belated arrival of Flight Officer Gene Autry. Autry, recently returned from overseas, appeared during matinee and evening performance with his trick horse, Champion. His appearance is sponsored by the army air forces in the sixth war loan drive.

Sunny Ridge Queen, owned by H. Leslie Atlass of Wheaton and driven by R. C. [Doc] Flannery, carried off the top prize of the day, the $1,500 championship stake for fine harness horses pulling four wheeled vehicles. While the decision did not meet with satisfaction thruout the stands, the showmanship of the veteran reinsman left J. L. Younghusband's favored Sycamore Ace in second place. Third award went to Empress Delaine, owned by the Delaine Farm of Morton Grove.

First Matinee Program.

The first of five scheduled matinees featured harness horses and ponies, but in the program of eight competitive events were showings of hunters and lightweight stock animals—cow ponies to the uninitiated in show ring terminology.

Mrs. Louis Swift of Wheaton chalked up the fifth blue ribbon of the first two sections of the nine day show when she scored on her big roan gelding, Range Wrattler, in the first affair on the afternoon card, a showing of jumpers in the Handy Hunter class. Marina, a beautiful black mare from the stables of Mrs. Phillip Hart of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., and ridden by Clark Brown, took second, while Bruce, Mrs. A. C. Thompson's champion gelding, with Eddie Bruener in the saddle, won third place.

King of Plains Wins.

One of the finest animals to be exhibited turned up in the five gaited saddle class. It was Miss Virginia Smith's King of the Plains which, given perfect guidance by Fred Brown, earned the blue award for his Milwaukee, Wis., owner.

Three entries made their appearance in the harness class for ponies in tandem and first place was won

Buddy Bomar, who not so long ago moved to Chicago from Dallas, Tex., last night won the National individual match game bowling championship, succeeding Paul Krumske, another Chicagoan, who held the title only 14 days after winning it from Ned Day, West Allis, Wis., in a challenge match.

Bomar ended the arduous work of winning his championship in the fourth All-Star tournament on the drives of the Auditorium service men's center, with a Petersen point total of 304.46. He won 40½ games, lost 23½ and had a pin total of 13,171, an average of 205 plus for the 64 games. The tournament was conducted by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. and the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America.

Wilman Battles for Second.

Pvt. Joe Wilman, a Chicagoan now stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash., was second with 296.16, followed by Day with 293.16 and Joe Sinke of Chicago with 289.42. All four will be seeded into the finals of next year's tournament.

Bomar entered the final phase of the tournament, a position round, with a lead of seven points and 35 pins. Nothing less than a miracle could have prevented his winning the title and $2,000 first prize. However, Wilman was battling for the runner-up spot with its accompanying $1,000 award, $500 more than the pay-off of third place. Buddy walked off with the first two games, 191 to 188 and 226 to 147, but Joe bounced right back with two great efforts, taking the third game, 201 to 188, and the fourth, 221 to 197. Wilman won 36½ games and lost 27½ and had a total pinnage of 12,991. Day won 37 games and lost 27 and had a pin total of 12,816.

Bomar Takes Four from Day.

Bomar's last day of activity was the title clincher. While he owned a neat advantage going into yesterday's play, it certainly wasn't sufficient to warrant too much optimism among the Bomar forces. However, he opened his final day's work by splitting with Nelson Burton, St. Louis, then took four straight from Day, and three of four from Rudy Pugel of Milwaukee. He split with Wilman.

Wilman lost ground in splitting with Krumske after taking three from Fred Bujack, Detroit. He also divided with Day and Bomar.

The tournament was conducted under the Petersen point system, which credits a bowler with 1 point for each 50 pins he knocks down and a point for each game he wins within each four game block. In addition, he receives an extra point if he won the lesser number of games, but still outscores his opponents in total pins. In the even of a tie game, each bowler draws a ½ point, or the equivalent of 25 pins.

COCHRAN BEATS GREENLEAF TO TAKE CUE LEAD

Cochran, undefeated, now has won seven straight matches. He has only two left, against Joe Camaco, Mexico City, tomorrow night and Willie Hoppe, defending champion, on Tuesday when the tourney ends. Hoppe has won six of seven matches.

smashed four times for 10, 3, 9, and 6 to put the ball on the Redskins' 44. Washington still was bracing for another smack by the 22 year old rookie from California when Herber arched a long pass which Libel took on the Redskins' 13. He ran over with no challenge and Strohg kicked the point for a 21 to 0 edge with only 45 seconds remaining in the period.

Cuff's Kick Makes It 24-0.

Baugh's second down pass was intercepted by Bill Petrilas on Washington's 34. Livingston slammed to the 30 as the third quarter ended. He made only 5 yards in two thrusts when play was resumed. Cuff, from the 32, kicked a goal for a 24 to 0 lead.

The Redskins switched from Baugh to Filchock and Len Younce, Giant guard, speared Frankie's pass on the Washington 41. Then came a punting exchange, with the Redskins starting from their 19. Baugh's pitches put his team just over midfield, but again his attack backfired when Charley Avedisian, a guard, intercepted a pass on the Washington 48 and ran down the sidelines for a touchdown. Keith Beebe's kick made it 31 to 0. Statistics:

EAGLES WIN, 26 TO 13

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 10 (AP).—The Philadelphia Eagles scored a 26 to 13 victory over the Cleveland Rams today before 24,123 Shibe park fans to gain second place in the eastern division of the National Football league.

Roy Zimmerman's precision passing accounted for one Eagle touchdown and set up two others.

The pass from Zimmerman to End Tom Miller in the opening moments set up the Eagle's first score and a few minutes later Van Buren scored on a 10 yard plunge.

The Eagles were temporarily halted in the second period by Lou Zontini, former Notre Dame star, who took one of Albie Reisz's many aerials and sprinted 30 yards for a Ram score.

Zimmerman struck back quickly as the Eagles scored two touchdowns in the second period.

After a scoreless third period, Ernie Steele scored on a 10 yard jaunt thru center. Zimmerman again missed the extra point.

Albie Reisz retaliated with a pass to End Ray Hamilton which covered 70 yards for a score with less than two minutes to go. Zontini kicked the point.

TRIPPI, GREMLINS WIN, 14-7, OVER SUPERBOMBERS

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 10 (AP).—Charles Trippi, former Georgia Rose Bowl star, punted and passed the 3d air force Gremlins to a 14 to 7 triumph over the 2d air force Superbombers today.

Glenn Dobbs, as usual, represented the biggest threat for the Superbombers, but the 2d air force eleven could do little in the way of stopping Trippi, who threw one pass to tie the score and then another to clinch the victory. Altogether Trippi completed 17 out of 24 passes for 121 yards.

Art Brandau, ex-Tennessee center, intercepted a Dobbs' pass to set up the winning score in the last period. Trippi, trapped nearly at mid-field, squeezed thru to the Superbombers' 20, from where he and Bob Kennedy, former Washington State star, plunged to the 1. On fourth down Trippi passed to Jack Kelleher, former Columbia end, in the end zone. John Seltenreich added the extra point.

JEWS OBSERVE HAPPY SEASON OF CHANUKAH

The happy eight day season of Chanukah, Jewish feast which celebrates their liberation in the year 165 B. C. from Syria-Greek tyranny, opened at sundown last night with festivities recalling rededication of the temple at Jerusalem. The first of the eight candles or menorahs was kindled in many homes, the remainder to be lighted one each day of the festival season. The successful war waged against Antiochus Epiphanes [the "illustrious," the "madman"] by Judah Maccabee and his guerrilla warriors has been interpreted as the first notable struggle between forces of religious freedom and intolerance and bigotry.

Beginning Dec. 15 poultry retailers who sell to other retailers must do so at wholesale ceiling prices, it was announced. Heretofore they could sell at retail ceilings and the second dealer had to sell to the public at cost.

ADMITS SETTING $50,000 BLAZE IN CATTLE BARN

Watchman Held After New Fire at Place.

John Wagner, 54, of Aurora, a confessed firebug, was held by Kane county authorities pending a mental examination yesterday after he admitted starting the $50,000 fire in the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad cattle barn at Montgomery, two miles south of Aurora, last October.

Wagner, who lives on Talma st. in Aurora and is employed as a watchman at the barn, was arrested Tuesday night after another small fire broke out in the barn. At first he denied all knowledge of Tuesday night's blaze or the first last October in which 300 head of cattle were destroyed. But Friday, while being given a lie detector test by Leonarde Keeler, Chicago criminologist, he admitted setting the fire and also told of setting a series of other fires, including one in his own home.

Other Fires Listed.

The other fires included one in a pile of lumber in the Burlington yards at Aurora, and one in some box cars in the yards. He gave no reason for his acts. While being questioned, he was given a match with which to light a cigaret. Instead, he set fire to a piece of paper.

Arson charges were filed against Wagner Saturday by State's Atty. Charles D. Seidel of Kane county, who also ordered that Wagner be examined by an alienist to determine whether he is a pyromaniac.

Questioned by Officer.

Following his arrest Tuesday, Wagner was questioned by Lt. John E. Strever of the Aurora police, and by W. G. Fetzner, chief special agent for the Burlington railroad.

Seidel said Wagner was arrested in 1919 on a morals charge and that in 1933 he was placed on probation after being convicted of stealing brass engine fittings from the Burlington railroad.

Straley, pilot of a Liberator bomber in the South Pacific, who rushed to Chicago to be at the bedside of his stricken son, 5 month old Robert, was told yesterday that the baby has "a chance to live." The infant is a victim of spinal meningitis, and is at the municipal contagious disease hospital.

The father, who had never seen his son until Friday, when he saw him thru a glass partition at the hospital, is on a 10 day emergency leave. Yesterday he said he had asked for an extension. "I want to know for sure the baby is out of danger before I leave. Besides, I would like to hold my son in my arms," he said.

Lt. Straley was overseas a year and completed 35 bombing missions over Japanese held territory. He was stationed in the Marshalls and on Saipan, and wears the air medal with four oak leaf clusters and the distinguished flying cross with one oak leaf cluster. He expects to be assigned to San Diego for a month of specialized training before going back overseas. He is staying with his wife and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Wiener, 3305 W. 61st st.

BLUE PERSIAN CAT ADJUDGED BEST AT SHOW

Reserve champion was Wycliff's Jackpot of Countryside, owned by Mrs. Philip Martin of Marysville, O.

One hundred and fifty cats were exhibited, including both blue blood and alley cats. Mrs. George D. Kessles, 3821 W. Jackson blvd., president of the club for 30 years, issued a tip on the feeding of cats. They thrive best, she says, on horse meat and fish. Cream and milk, she said, are bad for them after they have attained full growth.

THE QUESTION.

What would you like to accomplish before the end of 1944?

WHERE ASKED.

La Salle and Madison sts.

THE ANSWERS.

Rose Iaculio, receptionist, 712 Aldine av.—First I'm going to make sure that all my mail is answered. This should have been done a long time ago. I want to start the new year with a clean slate so I'm going to pay all my bills: Then I'm going to do my own personal shopping that I have been putting off because of the Christmas rush.

Warren Mundt, student, 2138 N. Neva av.—I'd like to get into the air forces. I'll have to pass my examination, get my parents' consent to join and tie all the loose ends at home before I leave. They will include selling my car, disposing of my clothing, storing all my personal belongings, etc. You can see I'm going to be plenty busy.

Adrienne Wax, stenographer, 4752 Virginia av.—At home I have a bag full of blouses that have been washed but not ironed. I always wash them in time, but have a hard time finishing the job. I've a lot of calls I want to make, should invite my friends over before 1945 and answer a long list of letters that I've put off for many weeks.

Mardi Bryson, stenographer, 526 Belden av.—The most important thing is that I'd like to get all my bills paid before the year is over. I've been trying to crowd into stores to get my Christmas shopping done, but haven't had any success. I hope to get that done in time. I've been working days and nights and have all kinds of jobs to do at home.

E. Weissert, bookkeeper, 1120 Randolph st., Oak Park—This Christmas and New Year's I'll probably be in the hospital. I haven't been feeling so well, so to start 1945 in a grand manner I'm going to have my health taken care of. Then I'll be more able to do all the duties I'm supposed to. I know I'll enjoy life more after this job is done.

Kathleen McDowell, 9, 8865 Burlington blvd., Brookfield—In school I'm having a little difficulty with my arithmetic. I hope to get this problem straightened out before too long. At home I'm having trouble finding my clothes, shoes, and everything I own. I'm going to clean my dresser drawers and work out a system so I can keep them neat.

NEWS OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE

MIDLAND CASE, LAST OF INSULL TANGLE, ENDING

Indiana Units Shed Court Rule Soon.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

With the payment of $5,713,000 last Thursday to creditors of the Midland United and Midland Utilities companies the affairs of these two affiliated Indiana utility enterprises appear about to be untangled and litigation ended after more than a decade. This case also is the last of court reorganization proceedings involving former Insull companies that were plunged into financial difficulties after the stock market crash of 1929.

A few matters remain to be settled before the Midland companies emerge from court jurisdiction, but attorneys identified with the case predict that such hurdles will be cleared soon.

Dismissal of Appeal Sought.

A hearing will be held Wednesday in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago on a motion to dismiss an appeal brought by the debenture holders against the action of the securities and exchange commission in authorizing the trustees to file reorganization plans in federal court at Wilmington, Del.

The trustees also must obtain approval of the reorganization plans from security holders of the two companies which once had combined assets in excess of 179 million dollars. Finally, the District court at Wilmington, on receipt of sufficient assents from security holders, must confirm the plan.

An important step was last week's action in the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company where representatives of the secured creditors got $5,713,000 of the $7,230,000 for which they agreed to settle claims aggregating $15,587,000. The remainder is to be paid off on a pro rata basis. The secured creditors are the Continental bank, Peoples Gas Light and Coke company annuity trust, Commonwealth Edison company, Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, and Public Service Company of Northern Illinois.

Controls Big Utility.

The creditors surrendered to trustees of the two Midland companies various assets which included approximately 4 million in cash.

The principal asset of Midland Utilities was 2,154,000 common shares—the direct control—of Northern Indiana Public Service company, 118 million dollar operating utility with headquarters in Hammond. The principal asset of Midland Utilities was 491,000 shares of Public Service Company of Indiana, 134 million dollar company with headquarters in Indianapolis.

The various Midland assets will be distributed among security holders after court approval of the plan. Attorneys said distribution of Midland stock in the two big Indiana operating companies would leave shareholder control of them largely decentralized.

Public Sale Expected.

However, Middle West corporation would obtain a sizable amount of stock of Public Service of Indiana thru its ownership of $6 preferred shares of Midland United.

An investment banking group including Stone & Webster and Blodget is expected to bid for the 2,514,000 shares of Northern Indiana held by the trustee of Midland Utilities. Attorneys said "it is presumed" the bidding group will reoffer the stock to the public.

The two Midland companies went under court jurisdiction in June, 1934, under the amended federal bankruptcy law. Midland Utilities was organized in 1923 as a holding company for Insull companies and interests in Indiana. Insull later organized Midland United as a holding company above Utilities.

SCHENLEY DIVERSIFIES.

I am told that Schenley Distillers corporation has been placing its interests on a broader foundation than production of alcoholic beverages. What are some of its other activities?—F. O.

Schenley in recent years has diversified its business, both by widening its interests in the alcoholic beverage field and by undertaking new activities. Thru an active research program, the management expects to diversify the business further.

In the fiscal year ended last August the company commenced commercial production of penicillin at a plant in Lawrenceburg, Ind. Streptothricin, another mold product, is receiving attention. Pilot plant experimentation is being made with a new short-cut method of making butane-diol from corn. The management believes this chemical may figure in post-war fabrication of many articles of everyday use.

A number of new processes for enriching animal and poultry feed mixtures manufactured from distillery, brewery, and winery by-products, and for preparing them for convenient use, have been developed. The company is doubling the capacity of its feed recovery facilities. Like other whisky producers, Schenley most of the time since October, 1942, has devoted its distilleries to making war alcohol. In recent years the company has purchased California wine properties and Blatz Brewing company.

Report Output of All Major Arms Lagging

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10 (AP).—None of the major categories of combat munitions met its October schedule, the war production board reported today.

The report placed the value of the month's munitions output at 5 billion 240 million dollars, substantially the same as in September. On an over-all basis, production fell 2 per cent behind reduced schedules set at the beginning of the month.

As a group, the "critical programs" gained 6 per cent over the September output. Increases ranged from small to sizable. Major increases included: Communications wire, 10 per cent; trucks over 10 tons, and cotton duck for tents, 13 per cent; general purpose and fragmentation bombs, 11 per cent; tanks, 20 per cent.

55 Per Cent More Artillery.

"In spite of the October gains," the board said, "the critical programs must still improve much more than they did if the army and navy are to get all the critical supplies called for in their stated requirements.

"For example, a rise of 55 per cent over the October rate is required in November and December for army heavy artillery to meet the 1944 stated requirements; even this goal is below computed strategic requirements."

Programs behind schedule included heavy bombers, heavy ammunition and artillery, heavy trucks, assault transports and assault cargo ships, cotton duck, and spare parts for the fleet.

Comparative Output.

October production [dollar value] compared with September and the October schedule was:

Aircraft [airframes, engines, propellers, spare parts, and equipment], down 4 per cent from September; 3 per cent below October schedule.

Ships [value of work done on army, navy and maritime commission ships, including maintenance and repair], no change; 1 per cent below.

Guns and fire control, up 4 per cent; 3 per cent below.

Ammunition, no change; 2 per cent below.

Communications and electronic equipment, up 5 per cent; 6 per cent below.

Other equipment and supplies, up 3 per cent; 1 per cent below.

Purchase by the war food administration of 50,000 cases of grades 1 and 2 shell eggs for export is under consideration, Earl K. Riley, head of the procurement division, said yesterday. Washington, D. C., Dec. 10 (AP).—Production of farm machinery in the four months ended Oct. 31 fell 25 per cent short of meeting manufacturers' schedules, the WPB reported today. DISCOVERY OF LARGE COPPER

WAR CHEMISTRY TO PUT COLOR IN WORLD AT PEACE

Thousands of Products to Be Introduced.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 10.—Du Pont—E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., America's pioneer munition manufacturers—while turning out a variety of goods for the army and navy has also developed new materials and goods for the postwar civilian market in the variety characteristic of the chemical industry.

The big chemical company has purchased a ship channel site in Houston, Tex., for post-war construction of a plant to manufacture phenothiazine. This is a chemical compound which was discovered in 1938 to be efficacious in removing worms from cattle and sheep. It was introduced commercially in 1940 but volume production was impeded by war time shortages of labor and materials.

Millions Lost Annually.

Company officials estimate the loss from worms in cattle and sheep in the United States approximates 125 million dollars a year. The loss is not alone in meat but also in leather, wool, and in sheep gut, needed for surgery. Even with limited use of phenothiazine, the officials assert, this waste has been reduced 10 per cent in the last year.

Another aid to manufacturing is seen as a result of war time studies of colors as they are envisioned by the majority of eyes. In munition plants, different parts of machinery have been painted different colors to aid perception of distances—called depth perception. The technique has also been called three dimension painting. Du Pont spokesmen believe the technique will also be applied to interior decorations of homes—somewhat like mirrors are now applied to increase the apparent size of a room.

Warping Is Eliminated.

In the construction field, plastics open a wide opportunity for innovations, most of which have been widely publicized. Chemical treatment will give maple hardness to cottonwood or poplar. It will make maple as hard as ebony. Woods now of little commercial value will be made to serve as well as walnut for furniture.

With the new treatment, the impregnated wood will be dimensionally stabilized, free of warping, so that doors and dresser drawers and window frames will not stick.

A new chemical weed killer also is awaiting post-war volume production. It has an ammonium sulfamate base, the same base used for a solution to spray draperies and other fabrics to make them resistant to fire. It is noninflammable and not dangerous to pets.

Relief from insect pests is promised from dimethyl phthalate, which is likely to be the post-war successor to citronella. Fishermen, huntsmen, woodsmen, and farmers will be pleased by the efficacy of this repellent of flies, mosquitoes, sandflies, and chiggers.

Developed for Jungle Fighter.

It was developed to ease the hardships of the lads who are carrying guns thru tropical jungles. It is effective when applied to clothing once every five days or to the skin once every one to six hours.

Fruit growers, when the war is over, will receive an abundant supply of a hormone spray to reduce losses from dropping before the picking. The spray, prolonging the youth of the fruit, keeps the stems from early drying and breaking.

In the manufacturing field, du Pont has developed an exploding rivet. An explosive, thru the shank, is detonated by heat on the head. It doesn't require a backer to mushroom the end in awkward locations, such as in aircraft manufacture. The explosion assures a tight fit.

In peace time, according to du Pont spokesmen, the rivet will aid in manufacture of automobiles, refrigerators, cabinets, and the like.

Du Pont and the other big chemical companies are making or contributing materials to a variety of civilian products almost innumerable—roughly estimated at between 5,000 and 10,000 items. Many of them are new. It's a rapidly advancing industry.

GREEN TELLS MILITIA GROUP ENEMY HOPES TO PROLONG THE WAR

Our enemies hope to prolong the war in the belief that it will cause a general relaxation of effort on the American home front, Gov. Green declared last night in an address at a banquet in the Morrison hotel which closed the two day annual meeting of the Illinois Reserve Militia Officers association.

"The continued and never ending stream of production of war materials must be our answer to the international gangsters whose only creed is conquest," Gov. Green said.

He commended the Reserve militia for the important work it has performed thruout the state since the nation has been at war.

At an earlier meeting, 400 members of the association elected their officers for the coming year. They are Brig. Gen. E. L. Belt of Chicago, president; Col. Kenneth MacDonald of Aurora, 1st vice president; Col. Lawrence J. Davidson of Chicago, 2d vice president; Col. Melville D. Johnson of Peoria, 3d vice president; Lt. Col. John White of Chicago, secretary, and Lt. Col. Thomas Breen of Chicago, treasurer. Brig. Gen. Louis M. Stacy of Peoria is the retiring president.

Puerto Rican Congress Asks for Independence

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Puerto Rico independence congress, open to all political parties and last held in 1942, convened today with an estimated attendance of 20,000. A request that Puerto Rico be made an independent republic was sent to President Roosevelt.

BAR FUN SHOW HITS TARGETS IN HIGHEST PLACES

"Christmas Spirits," the fun show of the Chicago Bar association, scheduled for its 20th annual performance tonight and tomorrow, still hilariously lampoons itself and others—mostly others. The briefs and brevities, as it also is known, was given a dress rehearsal yesterday in the Terrace Casino of the Morrison hotel, where it will be staged.

The show opens with a patriotic prologue featuring all American military services, as well as Presidents Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, Wilson, and Theodore and Franklin Roosevelt, and it closes with a "Merry Christmas" to all. Between the few serious moments such personages as Franklin D. Roosevelt, Eleanor Roosevelt, and Thomas E. Dewey are given a thoro going over.

Revue Moves Swiftly.

The revue moves swiftly and smoothly thru more than two hours of banter and nonsense and songs and dances that improve as they go.

For instance, in the skit "Franklin Forever" the lawyers take their audience into the future, and give it a glimpse of the 32d annual production of "Christmas Spirits," at which a personal appearance is made by the President, who is introduced as "His Excellency, Franklin VII."

Breaks Into Song.

Walter H. Chambers impersonates Roosevelt, and backed by his "kitchen cabinet yesmen" [which includes one woman], breaks into song as the curtain is drawn. To the music of "Always," he promises:

I'll be foolin' you, always,
You'll have El'nor, too, always.
My colossal plan
All the world will span;
With but one head man,
Always, always.
Congress may advise small ways,
So I'll subsidize doll days;
When I slam the door,
Nineteen forty-four
Will not mean four years more,
But always.

In "Retribution," the lawyers explain that "the true reason why Uncle Sam gave Ward's back to management" was that the government couldn't run such a big business. The skit depicts the first day in Sewell Avery's office after the army took over the Chicago facilities of Montgomery Ward & Co., big merchandising and mail order firm. Atty. Gen. Francis Biddle, dressed in an army general's uniform and wearing a paper "Uncle Sam" hat similar to the one he wore at the 1944 Democratic national convention, is played by Robert G. MacDonald, who earlier also impersonates Dewey. L. Duncan Lloyd is Avery.

'Harmony Boys Sing.'

"The Harmony Boys," a quartet satirizing Mayor Kelly, Robert Hannegan, Democratic national chairman, Frank Hague, mayor of Jersey City, N. J., and Sidney Hillman, head of the CIO political action committee, ask their listeners to the tune of "Who":

Who did we nominate?
Who did we castigate?
Our machine can squeeze 'em in two;
How they squeal when we turn on the screw!
When we illuminate,
Who will we fumigate?
Who will consume the bait?
Who, who, no one but you.

Unreasonable facsimiles of the "Harmony Boys" are turned in by Attorneys John G. Birks, Adalbert J. Kirschten, Thomas I. Underwood, and Clarence R. Conklin.

DRAFT 150 BILLS FOR UNIFORMITY IN ASSESSMENTS

About 150 bills designed to straighten out Illinois' muddled tax assessment rates and provide state-wide assessments at full valuation under the supervision of the state revenue department and county assessors will be introduced in the state legislature when it convenes in January.

State Sen. Walker Butler, chairman of the joint legislative tax committee appointed last spring by Gov. Green to study problems raised by Cook county's new 100 per cent assessment plan, said last night that his committee will draft the bills between now and Jan. 1, 1945, and present them simultaneously with a report to the governor.

The large number of bills needed to modernize the hodgepodge tax structure which has grown up over the years, Sen. Butler said, is made necessary because authority for each of the 145 kinds of taxing districts within the state is found in a separate place in the state statutes.

Move to Bar Increases.

If full valuation assessments were state-wide, as the committee's basic bills propose, each of the 145 statutes would require amendment to cut the established tax rate in proportion to the increase in valuation. Such action would insure that there would be no increases in actual taxes levied, Butler said.

The situation arose when Assessor Clark assessed Cook county property at 100 per cent of valuation early this year. Tax rates of railroads and other public utilities are set by the state board of revenue at an average of the assessment rates in the state's 102 counties. When the Cook county rate jumped from 37 to 100 per cent the state-wide average jumped from 31 to 54 per cent.

Resulting confusion caused delay in sending out tax bills in downstate counties and eliminated about $4,500,000 from Cook county revenues. Inequalities affecting villages and cities lying partially within two counties also brought taxpayers' protests to the state. Gov. Green appointed the legislative committee to study the situation.

Plan County Supervisors.

One of the Butler committee's main bills would set up a county assessment supervisor in each downstate county. One thousand seven hundred township assessors now work individually in 101 counties. The assessor supervisor, who would be chosen by the county board, under qualifications set up by the bill, would set up a modern system of tax records. Only a small fraction of the counties now have such a record system.

Another bill would reduce the tax rates for Cook county so that at full valuation an amount equal to the 1942 pegged levy would be raised. An alternative tax rate would be provided so that if government plants were turned over to private industry before June, 1947, additional taxes might be levied on them.

HOLDUP MAN GETS $30.

Louis Marcus, 519 N. Troy st., manager of a cleaning plant at 2924 W. Roosevelt rd., told police yesterday that a white man robbed him of $30 in a holdup at the plant.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON, NORTHERN DIVISION.

IN THE MATTER OF: No. 33998. Proceedings for Corporate Reorganization under Section 77B of the National Bankruptcy Act.
THE DEXTER HORTON ESTATE, a corporation, Debtor.

Notice of security holders of DEXTER HORTON BUILDING, INC., a corporation, of application to extend time within which holders of the securities of DEXTER HORTON ESTATE, above named Debtor, shall have in which to exchange said securities for securities of DEXTER HORTON BUILDING, INC.

TO THE SECURITY HOLDERS OF DEXTER HORTON BUILDING, INC., SEATTLE, WASHINGTON:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that the Honorable Lloyd L. Black, one of the Judges of the above entitled court, will on the 15th day of January, 1945, at the hour of 10:00 o'clock A. M. or as soon thereafter as the matter can be heard] in his Court Room, Federal Court House, Fifth Avenue and Madison, Seattle, Washington, hear and consider the petition of F. A. BLACK and J. A. WALTERS [owners of First Mortgage 6% Sinking Fund Gold Bonds, dated July 1, 1927, due July 19, 1947, of the Dexter Horton Estate, Debtor above named] on their behalf and on behalf of all similarly situated holders of old and unexchanged securities of the Debtor, alleging in substance that through inadvertence they failed to present their securities for exchange for securities of DEXTER HORTON BUILDING, INC., [the new corporation] within the time limited by the Final Decree entered herein on October 22, 1937, i. e., on or before October 22, 1943, and asking that an order be entered herein extending the time within which securities may be exchanged under said Final Decree to enable them, and other security holders similarly situated, to effect said exchange.

YOU ARE FURTHER NOTIFIED that the undersigned DEXTER HORTON BUILDING, INC., successor to the above named Debtor, and also PHILIP D. MACBRIDE, F. J. DEE, GEORGE P. HARGROVE and ROBERT E. EVANS as Voting Trustees under the Voting Trust Agreement of said Company dated June 15, 1937, have by Answer and Cross-Petition filed herein, joined in and consented to the application of said security holders for extension of time, alleging that the extension, if granted, should not be beyond December 31, 1947.

Although the six year period within which exchange of old securities of the Debtor for new securities of DEXTER HORTON BUILDING, INC., fixed by the final decree expired October 22, 1943, there are $23,200.00 in amount of old First Mortgage Bonds [total amount outstanding at time of reorganization proceedings, $2,020,000.00] and $6,500.00 of Second Mortgage Bonds [total amount outstanding at the time of the reorganization proceedings $350,000.00], which have not been presented for exchange for new securities under plan of reorganization. Notwithstanding the failure of the holders thereof to make timely exchange of these old securities, DEXTER HORTON BUILDING, INC. has been paying to the several Trustees, and the several Trustees under the two indentures of the Company have been accumulating the interest due and becoming due in respect of these unexchanged securities.

YOU ARE FURTHER NOTIFIED that at the aforesaid hearing the court will hear and consider the consents or objections of such and all interested parties who may be present at said hearing or who, prior to such hour, shall have filed herein written statements under oath of their consent or objection.
